Go-Ahead For Mace Highrise?

By PAUL MOSS

Months of stalling action — and inaction — by Victoria on the controversial Bay Village development in James Bay could end today with an initiative by the city to reopen lines of communication with developer J. A. Mace.

ISRAELI JETS HAMMER ARAB BASES

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli planes bombed two Arab guerrilla bases in Syria today and touched off dogfights between the Israeli and Syrian air force and artillery duels along a 25-mile stretch of the Golan Heights ceasefire line.

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the Israelis shot down two Syrian MiG 21 jet interceptors that tried to drive off the Israelis, making their second big attack on Arab guerrilla bases in 10 days. He said Israel suffered no losses.

The latest round of fighting between Syria was the heaviest between the two nations in 27 months of Middle East cease fire, exceeding in ferocity the strikes and counterstrikes of Oct. 30.

Kissinger Aide In Saigon

New York Times

WASHINGTON — The White House says Henry A. Kissinger's chief aide, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, has gone to Saigon to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam on the efforts to conclude an Indochina settlement.

It is widely assumed that following Haig's talks with Thieu, Kissinger would hold a "final" round of meetings with North Vietnamese negotiators to complete the details of the nine-point agreement, first worked out in a draft form last month. Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, announced Haig's mission, asserting that he would confer with Thieu "on the progress of the peace negotiations and make a general assessment of the situation in Vietnam."

Haig was accompanied by John D. Negroponte, the chief Vietnam specialist on Kissinger's staff, and Maj. Frederick Brown, military aide to Haig. Ziegler said Haig was due to return to Washington Saturday or Sunday.

Homeowners May Sue Que. Hydro

MONTREAL (CP) — Homeowners left without electric power since Monday threatened legal action Wednesday as a strike by 8,500 Quebec Hydro employees entered its fourth day today with no sign of a return to the bargaining table.

Of 236 power failures since the walkout began at 7:30 a.m. Monday, 175 remain unprepared, leaving 7,800 customers in Montreal, Quebec City and the Laurentians area without electricity.

In the Montreal suburb of Cote St. Luc, where more than 4,000 persons have been without electricity since Monday morning, residents said at a meeting they would seek a court order demanding the repair of the broken cable that caused the blackout.

Meanwhile, representatives of Hydro-Quebec and its 8,500 striking employees returned to the bargaining table today following a call by provincial Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer for a resumption of contract talks.

According to information the Times has received, a resolution was to come up at the city council meeting this afternoon proposing that a bylaw be prepared as the first step in council's reconsideration of the highrise project.

Sources at city hall say the resolution at today's meeting envisages a bylaw worded along the lines of a compromise offer by council last June—that is, allowing Mace a 24-storey tower.

The proposal has been in suspension since late June when Mace instituted legal proceedings against the city claiming damages for its "willful refusal" to execute what he claimed was a valid land-use contract.

At that time it appeared council was prepared to do battle in the courts, but latterly aldermen have become increasingly concerned at the costly consequences to the city if the action were to go in Mace's favor.

Some estimates put that figure as high as $250,000.

In the face of such a risk, recent indications have been that Mayor Peter Pollen is receiving little support from other council members in his continued opposition to the highrise project.

The proposed development at Menzies and Simcoe was originally to have been 29 storeys high, and this was initially approved by council in June, 1971.

Although Mace, some months later signed the land-use contract governing the development, the city refused to do so on grounds that Mace's application for a development permit was defective.

On several occasions in the early months of this year Mace threatened to sue the city over the delay. The stalemate finally appeared to have been resolved last June when council held out a compromise offer to Mace.

Under the terms of the offer, the developer was invited to apply for a contract allowing him to proceed with the development, with the height cut by five storeys and the density reduced.

Mace agreed to the general

Food Prices Down Slightly But Consumer Index Up 5%

Times News Services

Despite a small monthly drop in food prices, the consumer price index was 5.3 per cent higher in October than a year ago.

Statistics Canada today reported the price index rose to 142 in October from 141.8 in September and 134.9 a year ago.

The food section of the index, which accounts for 27 per cent of all spending, proved to be the most startling.

The food index in October was 145.3, down slightly from the 146.7 in September but way up from the 133.0 a year ago.

Higher housing and clothing costs were mainly responsible for the monthly increase, which is considered average for this time of year.

Although Mace, some months later signed the land-use contract governing the development, the city refused to do so on grounds that Mace's application for a development permit was defective.

On the food category, the price of restaurant meals rose last month, but there was a significant drop in the cost of foods purchased for home consumption.

For food at home, last month's grocery basket cost $14.13 compared with $14.31 in September and $12.90 in October last year.

In compiling the overall index, Statistics Canada figures housing cost represent 32 per cent of the total, food prices 27 per cent and clothing prices 11 per cent.

tobor, with the approach of winter.

In dollar terms, the over-all index means that it cost $14.20 in October to buy what $14.18 bought in September, or what $13.49 bought in October last year, in a broad selection of consumer goods and services.

Health and personal care items, which account for only seven per cent of the total, also rose last month with higher dental fees, and higher prices for soap, toothpaste and razor blades.

Statistics Canada said the over-all index at 142 means another cent was trimmed from the purchasing power of the dollar last month. The 1961 consumer dollar was worth only 70 cents last month, compared with 71 cents in September and 74 cents in October last year.

Another way of looking at the index is to say that consumer prices last month were 42 per cent higher than they were in 1961. They were 83.5 per cent higher than they were in 1949.

JET PLAYS PASSENGER

LONDON (UPI) — An El Al Boeing 747 taxied straight into a departure lounge at London Airport Wednesday, causing heavy damage but injuring no one.

The airliner, carrying 149 passengers, crashed into the lounge when the brakes apparently failed on final approach. Its radar-housing nose cone was damaged, but an airline spokesman said repair would take only a few hours.

5 IN. RAIN SOAKS NEW YORK

NEW YORK (AP) — A driving northeast gale broke all records for a November downpour Wednesday, inundating the metropolitan area with 5.06 inches of rain in less than 18 hours.

The day's rainfall also surpassed the average for the entire month of November, which is 3.39 inches.

Winds gusting up to 60 m.p.h. tore umbrellas out of the hands of midtown pedestrians, who leaned at a 45-degree angle as they fought through the storm.

B.C. to Seek Pollution Curbs In Alaska, Washington Talks

Premier Barrett said today he will travel to Washington State in mid-January to discuss pollution with Governor Dan Evans and state officials.

Barrett said also he will meet Governor William Egan of Alaska on the same topic next Thursday.

The Washington meeting will be aimed at forming "a committee to establish common pollution control standards on the coast," Barrett said.

While there he will visit the state legislature, the premier said.

A secondary topic on which the two hope to find common interest is in tourist promotion, Barrett said.

LEASED AT RESPONSE

"I'm very, very pleased at Governor Evans' response," he said.

A year ago in January, Barrett led a delegation of then opposition NDP MLAs to Washington to discuss the possibility of joint pollution-control measures.

Later, Washington and British Columbia signed a memorandum of co-operation on pollution control on the Washington-B.C. coast. Nothing substantial has been developed, however.

Barrett also said he has asked Prime Minister Trudeau for a meeting to discuss unemployment and other matters.

Barrett would not discuss what was in the letter but said he hopes to have the meeting before Christmas.

Barrett also said he has asked Prime Minister Trudeau for a meeting to discuss unemployment and other matters.

The letter is going out today and there has been no chance for a reply.

MARSHALL GETS POST

Peter Marshall has been hired as Vancouver Island staff representative for the B.C. Government Employees' Union. It was announced today.

Marshall, 40, has been the union's regional vice-president for northern B.C. for two years. He worked as a correctional officer in Prince George.

A native of Aldershot, England, he is a former international representative of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mexico to Demand Return Of Hijackers From Cuba

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A backup Mexican airliner flew passengers and crew members home from Cuba today after a hijacked plane sprang an oil leak in Havana.

But the Cuban government gave no indication what it would do with the five hijackers, the ransoms they collected and six suspected bank robbers surrendered by the Mexican government.

The aircraft landed in Havana today from Monterrey, Mexico, carrying 75 passengers, five hijackers and the six "political prisoners" whose release was demanded and won by the gunmen.

The hijackers shouted "Viva Cuba" as they stepped from the Boeing 727 in Havana, carrying sub-machine guns which they used to commandeer the flight during a domestic flight in Mexico.

The hijackers were the last to leave the plane, owned by Mexican de Aviacion air-line.

The plane was commanded on a flight from the northern city of Monterrey to Mexico City and returned to Monterrey, where it circled for three hours before landing.

The hijackers demanded and got a ransom of four million pesos, about $300,000, as well as the release of the prisoners, who were among 12 persons, mostly university students, detained in the last few days for suspected urban guerrilla activities.

THE LAST ASIANS REACH CANADA

MONTREAL (CP) — The last plane load of Ugandan Asians to be airlifted from Kampala to Canada arrived here shortly after dawn today.

About 195 Asians, forced out of Uganda by President Idi Amin, reached Montreal after their flight from the Ugandan capital which included a four-hour stop in Halifax caused by mechanical difficulties.

The Asians, ranging from infants to grandmothers, went directly from the airport in Montreal to a Canadian forces base.

The last plane load to leave Uganda brought to 4,348 the number of Ugandan refugees airlifted to Canada by the Canadian government.

An immigration department spokesman said about 6,000 visas were issued in Kampala but some Asians who got visas were expected to winter in England before continuing to Canada.

After a brief welcoming ceremony and a hot meal at the military barracks, the Asians were to get some rest and then be processed before going to their final destinations.

The exodus of Asians from Uganda began this summer when President Amin ordered all Asians who did not hold Ugandan citizenship out of the country.

Late last month Amin ruled that the remaining Asians had had to leave the country's cities to move to rural areas.

GUNMAN SOUGHT

Shots by a phantom gunman crashed through at least four downtown display windows Wednesday night causing hundreds of dollars damage but no reported injuries.

Police by late morning were still receiving reports of holed plate glass in an area of about three blocks straddling Government Street.

Gordon Stewart, proprietor of Wille's Bakery, 537 Johnson, said he found four bullet holes when he opened up shop and later was told of two in a window of Drake Hotel, across the street at 536, and one in the adjoining furniture store at 741.

Police said the Poodle Dog restaurant, 1241 Government, also had two bullet holes.

A resident of the Drake said he heard "some commotion in the street" about 11 p.m., but he did not look outside.

British Nab Top IRA Man

From AP-Reuter

BELFAST (CP) — One of the Irish Republican Army's top five commanders in Belfast has been captured by British troops along with two of his officers in raids which followed renewed guerrilla bombing here.

The army said the guerrilla leader was the commander of the IRA Provisional wing's first battalion which operates in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown area where the man was arrested today. The army did not immediately identify him.

The army reported the capture Wednesday night of the first battalion's explosives officer and another senior IRA man.

The five arrests brought to the number of senior officers of the nationalist Provisional IRA captured by the army since the British security forces here stormed guerrilla strongholds July 31.

Guerrillas, meanwhile, drove a stolen car packed with 300 pounds of explosives into an underground car park below the headquarters of Northern Ireland's housing offices in the heart of Belfast.

Army demolition experts detonated the charge, damaging the building. No one was injured.

A bombing offensive Wednesday followed a lull which had lasted several weeks. Bombs also wrecked a supermarket in suburban Belfast, a service station, an indoor swimming pool and the only large hotel in Londonderry which had not previously been damaged by IRA explosives.

Meanwhile, the army reported a 13-year-old Protestant girl was found beaten in a Belfast street today. Her head had been shaved in an apparent punishment for fraternizing with British troops.

First Get a Green Light

The move of local municipal council to consider a city proposal to cash in on federal government aid to new secondary industries merits study. There is no doubt about the comment that Greater Victoria's secondary industry has been withering away. One by one established enterprises, some of long standing, have gone out of business or been transferred to the mainland. The federal program of aid to new industries or those which plan expansion is designed to provide employment in parts of Canada designated as economic expansion areas. The plan appears to offer possibilities for development here.

But there is some preliminary planning to be done, apart from getting the co-operation of the local governments in the Capital Region and having the application accepted by federal authorities. Mr. Terry Farmer, speaking as president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, has raised the question of creating industrial parks where new secondary industries could be established. If there were to be any significant influx of new manufacturing projects, planning would be necessary in order to find the best locations for them with the necessary utility and transport facilities.

But a still more basic consideration calls for attention, even before Mr. Farmer's suggestion. That is to determine the reason why Greater Victoria industries have withered over the years. If that reason is still effective, there will be little purpose in establishing enterprises with government grants only to have them succumb to the same forces which have been operative in the past. Something better is required than flash in the pan, which would create more disappointment than jobs once the initial impetus had subsided.

Why have secondary industries here been in decline for so long? The frequent answer, of course, is that our geographic location puts at a disadvantage any industry which must bring its raw materials over water from the mainland and ship its products back. Has anything happened to change the impact of this problem — or can anything be done to reduce its effects?

Keep the Financing Above-Board Too

While Colorado voters on Tuesday were vetoing the 1976 Winter Olympics in their state on economic and ecological grounds, The Canadian Press was carrying a cryptic report that Mayor Jean Drapeau had varied; if not contradicted, his earlier statement that no special help would be sought from senior governments for the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal. According to the report, Mr. Drapeau said both Quebec and Ottawa "will have to modify some acts so financing can be made available for some aspects of the Olympics."

Whether this means that extra funds will be sought directly from the province and the federal government, or that legislative changes are required to permit a large lottery and other voluntary fund raising events, is not clear from the statement. But the mayor also said that "our aim in 1976 is to make the Games completely self-financing" — a very optimistic objective.

Many Canadians will agree with the attitude on the Olympics expressed by Jean Beliveau, recognized not only as one of Canada's greatest professional athletes but as a person of unusual stature away from the arena. The Olympics, in his opinion, "fall in the category of one of the good things in this world," and for young participants "simply being there is a magic thing," with values in friendship and association with sportsmen and women from other lands.

There is a multitude of reasons favoring the Olympics and justifying a Canadian effort to hold them in Montreal. For this purpose it is reasonable to expect national financing in part at least — despite earlier disclaimers that special grants would be given by Ottawa. But there should be, as soon as possible, a firm estimate on what Canadians as a whole should be asked to contribute. There should be no subterfuge, with federal money being funneled into the Olympics surreptitiously. "Deals"; have no legitimate place in the staging of the Olympics any more than they have in the competitions of the athletes.

A Common Problem

The recent news conference given in Moscow by the Soviet minister of education, Mikhail Prokofyev, might be viewed as a consequence of the detente with the West. The briefing for the press was notable for the minister's human touches and for his description of arcane goings-on in his educational ministry. Mr. Prokofyev may be opening a debate on educational technique with his Western counterparts.

If so, there will be a great deal of common ground. In Russia such topics as lowering the school-starting age, the ability of students to learn more, the need for more elective courses and changes in the college admission system, are stylized — as they are here.

Perhaps the most remarkable new educational trend of the Soviet government is its attempts to get both parents (both of whom usually work) to participate in doing their children's homework. Reportedly, one Russian woman put it this way: "I don't mind helping my little Sasha with his Russian homework, but the new math is really beyond me."

Canadian mothers and fathers could echo a similar refrain.

To Be, or Else

It seems to me Shakespeare's words, "To be or not to be, that is the question," might well apply to the uncertainty which has overtaken Canada since the latest federal election.

In his campaign speech, delivered at Victoria, Pierre Elliott Trudeau said that, under his leadership, our vast land has been transformed from an unknown country into one known the world over. How egotistical a person can be! Surely other Canadian leaders before him had something to do with the transformation.

However, Canada's position appears extremely obscure right now; and it will remain so till such time as it citizens elect, then send to Ottawa, a sizable majority of politicians — belonging to whichever party they favor.

Oh let their leader be the staid and stolid Stanfield, with his temperate policies, rather than Lewis, the socialist, or our ultra-liberal, hippy-typed, "way-out" helmsman, who, among other mistakes made by him, advocates the freeing of hardened criminals long before their prison term expires.

To Be, or Else

For some time we have been hearing a great deal about the "Corporate Tax Bums" from Mr. Lewis.

Now that he is getting to a position where he can do something about it I am wondering if he will give as much consideration and attention to the "unincorporated tax bums" situation — the MPs who, voted themselves such a massive tax-free income increase in the last Parliament — C. From the Times of November 9, 1912:

PARIS — "Neither I nor the Sultan will ever abandon Constantinople. My sovereign will await death in his palace, I, in my office."

Thus Kiamil Pasha, Grand Vizier of Turkey, has addressed the ambassadors of the powers.

Kiamil Pasha informed the ambassadors in Constantinople that he would maintain order there until the end, according to a dispatch to the Matin today. It, however, the Turkish capital should be occupied by the invaders, the grand vizier declares that he could not be answerable for what the exasperation of the population might lead to.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Whose Fault?

Regarding your editorial comments on page 4 of Nov. 1, concerning the banning of sea-planes from restricted waters, I have a few comments of my own. Neither of us has any information on the details of this particular and unfortunate accident, but how, Mr. Editor, did you arrive at the conclusion that aircraft, not boats, should be banned?

Should motorcycles be banned on Douglas St. because they have been known to have accidents on that thoroughfare? Possibly no private cars should be allowed for the same reason.

To carry it to the ultimate, the street should possibly be used by buses or pedestrians only. Possibly all boats should be banned from all harbors and lakes, since they have had fire and collision accidents in these areas.

No, Mr. Editor, this is not the right approach to the problem, in my opinion, since accidents will happen as long as people, in boats, cars, airplanes, or whatever, do not use caution, forethought and their God-given faculties; and I am surprised that one so knowledgeable as you, with first-hand, worldwide information available, should be this narrow-minded.

It is akin to the usual slanted reporting (slanted unknowingly, I assume) when there is a mid-air collision between a large aircraft and a light plane — invariably it is reported that the airliner is hit by the light aircraft, without knowing the complete details, and regardless of speed considerations — if it involved a rear-end collision, the faster plane would be running into the slower one, and if head-on or at any side angles, surely the responsibility is shared; but no, the papers write it up as "light plane hits airliner."

With this kind of thinking, reporting and suggestions, Canadian aviation would still be in the 1912 era. — E. Ackerman, 838 Colville Rd.

Further along this line it must be noted that Mr. Cass-Beggs was fired from a similar post in Saskatchewan not because he proved incompetent but because he strongly embraced a Socialist policy as opposed to the incoming Liberals under Mr. Thatche.

How ironic it is now that Premier Barrett should suddenly find himself criticized for allegedly undertaking similar action.

Dr. Shrum, interestingly, was not actually sacked but had the wise judgement to realize that the two philosophies were incompatible. Necessity dictated his course.

To be candid and honest with ourselves, what party, be it Liberal, Conservative, NDP, Social Credit or whatever, is willing to place a political opponent in high position within the framework of their government? A sad commentary on patronage was our past Social Credit regime, despite Mr. Bennett's rantings.

Let's not be totally naive. For whether Dr. Shrum actually voted Sordid I do not profess to know. But what is patently obvious is that he was no standard bearer of the New Democrats and what followed was the natural outcome of a democratic mechanism; a system that we must endure, accept and most of all live with. — Frank E. Lockyer, 2145 Weiler, Sidney.

'In the Circle'

It is my belief that the Chief Electoral Officer and his legal advisers subverted the express will of Parliament in failing to order the Deputy Returning Officers to instruct every Canadian on how to properly mark his ballot in the last Federal Election.

The Canada Elections Act stipulates in section 45 (2) under the heading "Instructions to elector on receiving ballot paper" that, "the Deputy Returning Officer shall instruct each elector how and where to affix his mark."

The Chief Electoral Officer instead relied upon newspaper ads, and television stories. This amounts to a wanton and near criminal avoidance of an order incorporated into an Act of Parliament.

The House Committee that amended the old Act realized the possibility of confusion with the new ballots, and hence this section entered the Act as a safeguard. Section 45 (2) is clear; it does not state that a DRO "may" instruct, which implies discretion; it states that he "shall instruct."

Another exile whose voice has been heard after years of silence is Bao Dai, former Emperor of Vietnam and a well-heeled refugee in southern France. Bao Dai let it be known that he would be willing to return to Saigon and work for its rehabilitation as the political kaleidoscope changes.

Price Controls: A Hard Choice

Mr. Heath prepared a statutory price control policy this week with deep distaste. I say "deep distaste" because it does seem clear that he has been sincere in his intention to avoid this step. The price mechanism is, after all, the key to the free market system in which he still, at heart, believes.

Controls have been variously denounced as bureaucratic, dictatorial, ineffective, distorting to the economy, and treating symptoms instead of the disease. He has been converted because the present system has proved anarchic, socially divisive, destructive of confidence, and a threat to British progress in Europe. He has chosen the lesser evil.

All the same, central control of prices is full of problems, as governments have discovered from the United States to the U.S.S.R. The simple feeling of the woman in the supermarket that "they" ought to do something about it does not tell them what to do.

This brief survey of the problems, and of the attempts made in some other countries, cannot point to any neat, final answers. Price control must always be a compromise—between what is desirable and what is practical: between conflicting objectives of stability and growth, equity and reward.

Inflation is a symptom of disorders in the market economy. In Communist economies the same causes—the universal desire for more—tend to produce quite different symptoms, such as inefficient production of goods the market does not want, loss of personal freedom to choose jobs, and the growth of a black market economy in peasant produce, personal service, imported goods, and sometimes in land.

We know the troubles of inflation: the Communists know the troubles of excessive control. So the first step in compromise is to be more precise about what is wrong with the market economy.

The most general verdict of defenders of the market economy is that it is all due to lack of competition; and the EEC Commission, with its attachment to the benefits of a market economy covering all Europe, suggested to the Ministers who met in Luxembourg last week that tariffs should be cut to allow more competition from overseas, and that anti-trust policies should be more vigorous.

This seems to me rather wishful thinking, for while history is not particularly encouraging for those who believe in policies for prices and incomes, its lessons are really devastating for those who believe in competition policies. Not even the U.S. antitrust Acts, by far the toughest in the world, have done much to prevent the domination of the economy by the really large companies.

However, the idea is useful in drawing attention to the fact that competition is an alternative to controls. This notion is two-edged: in the U.S. the trade unions are demanding extra protection against foreign competition as their price for going along with further controls.

But more important, it limits the area of attention. So far as lack of competition really is the trouble, policies for control should concentrate on those areas of the economy where competition is lacking. The French price control system, for example, specifically excludes companies which can show that they work in markets dominated by international competition.

This analysis has a great advantage from the point of view of the civil servants who have to do the job, for basically it means looking at the big companies, where a few can dominate the market.

A final note of humor was provided for me by John Rolfe, the Globe man in Ottawa, who specializes in economic subjects. Mr. Rolfe led off a story about possible locations to come from a Stanfield government with the statement that senior federal servants did not anticipate any troubles in a changeover from a Trudeau to a Stanfield regime.

These mandarins told Mr. Rolfe that there was no reason to anticipate any jobs being in jeopardy.

Why is this humorous? Well at this early stage, what would a senior official say? Indeed, Mr. Rolfe really knows that several of the top economic advisers will be leaving rather quickly if Mr. Stanfield becomes prime minister. Mr. Stanfield isn't going to say so... yet! The men who'll be going certainly anticipate it, but could hardly say so.

It is not strictly true, as the trade unions and Labour spokesmen tend to argue, that these companies can set prices unilaterally: they are very much aware of what their immediate competitors are doing. Nevertheless, they do tend to act in concert, through informal systems of price leadership and sometimes through plain collusion.

Any attempt to control prices, where costs and crops cannot be governed by the bureaucrats, tends to result in an open-ended bill for subsidies. Again, the better the controls, the less the cost of backing them up with automatic compensation.

Finally, what is the aim of controls? To stop inflation or to slow it down? To control prices in detail (as in small countries) or across a weighted average, as in France? To prevent price increases, as in most countries, or to stabilize profit margins as well as prices, so that prices can occasionally be pushed down, as in the U.S.?

The lesson in nearly every country with any length of experience is not to try to be too ambitious. To stop inflation in its tracks can hit profits so hard that growth comes to a halt. To control details rather than averages tends to drive some goods right off the market.

Trying to control profits rather than just prices and dividends makes efficient companies relax, or even indulge in an orgy of expense accounts to keep profits below the ceiling. A flexible and relatively easy-going policy has a much better chance of survival than a comprehensive and rigid one.

Dictatorial,

Ineffective,

But Still

Lesser Evil

Finally, U.S. experience shows that it is immensely helpful if real incomes can be kept rising during price restraint, even if the cost—as with indexation—is a faster rise in costs than would otherwise be necessary.

Growth itself tends to reduce unit costs, and rising living standards make everyone happier with restraint. That is the one combination we have country-with-any-length-of-experience yet tried in Britain: it should be available now.

So there it is. Flexible controls concentrated on big companies and retail chains and by local vigilance: wages adjusted for the price rises that do get through the net, and allowed to rise further to keep demand growing (and this will also mean action on taxes and benefits); a flexible policy leaning on averages, not details—and possibly run by the French system of "contract" undertakings.

This seems to me an important and genuine problem. In the U.S., the unions complain that the Nixon price restraints break down at the retail level, and in Holland the introduction of VAT resulted in some bad gazumping. We are lucky in having big retail chains in Britain, who can be directly controlled: for the rest, it should, in time, slow it down, and it should reduce the pain. The costs in efficiency and freedom should be as low as it is possible to make them—for not even a partly effective policy can be kept free.

Some Laughter at the Wake

By DOUGLAS FISHER

One has to be a non-partisan to enjoy the foolish and naked remarks and opinions flying around over what the Liberals call "the awful mess."

Take the Hon. Donald Macdonald, MP for Rosedale and Minister of Resources. This gracious, big hearted man had a lopsided election night. He was angry about "the Conservative red-necks" and their vicious exploitation of backlash. The next day he had regained his perspective. At least he seemed to have done so in a phone conversation with Scott Young of the Globe and Mail.

He assured Mr. Young that he regretted his remarks about the red-necks; he was very apologetic; he sought forgiveness. This humility wavered quickly when Mr. Macdonald, transported by plane to the corridors of power in Ottawa, gave one reason of substance for Mr. Trudeau continuing on as PM. It was that Mr. Stanfield had appeared so inadequate as a potential replacement during his television performance the day before.

Of course, many would differ. I know some who thought Mr. Stanfield seemed sane, composed and positive. The laughable part of Mr. Macdonald's behavior is that if he really wished Mr. Trudeau to have any chance to carry on, even as an interim caretaker until all recounts are over, he should not be belittling Mr. Stanfield.

Another bit of jocularity was provided by Hu Harries, the defeated incumbent Liberal in the seat of Edmonton Strathcona. In my 15 years of scanning Members of Parliament I put Mr. Harries down as the Number One candidate for the "don't-give-a-damn" award.

Within a few months of the assembly of the 28th Parliament, Mr. Harries, a smart handsome consultant on oil and business matters, decided that he wasn't going to waste his time in Ottawa or in the Commons or its committees.

After he was deducted for his absenteeism.

Mr. Harries was considered by some of his party colleagues to be an embarrassment going into the campaign. Immediately after the election was over and all Liberals were swept away, which loser became spokesman for the rest? Mr. Harries demanded a party policy conference as soon as possible.

In comments to reporters, he gave a detailed criticism of the failures of the Trudeau government (his government!) and talked about "a political contract between the government and its adherents" in which undertakings agreed to at conventions would be carried out. Surely such effrontery, spiced in gall, dressed in the majesty of the lazy loser, is funny in a wry way.

A more abstract irony arose during the waning hours of election night when the newsmen and the cameras waited for word on whether the Liberals would hold the B.C. interior riding of Okanagan-Kootenay and the Tories hold the northern Saskatchewan riding of Meadow Lake. The lead in each case tilted back and forth; in B.C. for more than an hour; for Meadow Lake even longer.

The incumbent of the B.C. riding, Doug Stewart, is a pleasant man who has made a fetish of doing constituency case-work. Otherwise, he was the least penetrating and per-

If he wasn't recognized as good enough for a cabinet post or even a less visual ranking as a key policy adviser, then to hell with being a Member of Parliament in Ottawa. He was publicly proud that he spent little time there, that he didn't collect his MP's salary and expenses or, at least, only that part left

For Whom the Wind Blows

By RICHARD WEST

New Statesman

COLOGNE—Only in West Germany could a mass-circulation newspaper run a front-page lead story: "The weather today is dangerous."

Last Thursday's Bild went on to explain in smaller headlines: "Meteorologists warn that a warm wind will cause a drop in blood pressure. Embolism danger. Alarm for heart and circulatory patients."

The article underneath these headlines claimed that because the wind had switched from the west to the southwest "anyone with normal or low blood pressure would feel bad... more people than usual would kill themselves... more people than usual would suffer road accidents." A medical expert was quoted as saying that doctors would have to expect many cases of headache and depression.

Certainly there was mass alarm that morning, but whether caused by the weather or Bild I find it hard to say. On the train from Bad Godesberg to Bonn, and on the train from Bonn to Cologne, people discussed the weather with enthusiasm at having to live in such dangerous times.

A reporter from one of the news agencies told me: "This morning one of our senior men felt faint, the telex operator vomited and the person writing a profile of Brandt came out in a sweat with a splitting headache."

Few Germans I talked with felt any surprise at the Bild story. "Munich is worst for weather," a southerner said with a touch of pride. "They get what is called the Foehn, a warm wind from the mountain, which produces a clear sky but is very bad for the heart and circulation. No surgeons will operate during the Foehn."

The following day I picked up Bild expecting to read a summary of the mass havoc caused by the "dangerous weather." Two plain-clothes policemen had been hurt in a road smash in Cologne, while in Ulm a 16-year-old schoolboy had pushed his fiancee off a each of chips and a mound of ice cream.

During a few years' absence from Germany I had read of the sex-wave and of the slimming-wave. The first is much more conspicuous than the latter, so that the naked girls smiling from every magazine cover are thinner than most of the men who ogle them.

The failure of the slimming wave was no doubt due to the advertising departments of the newspapers, which found that the revenue from slimming ads could not compensate for the revenue from sweets and beer.

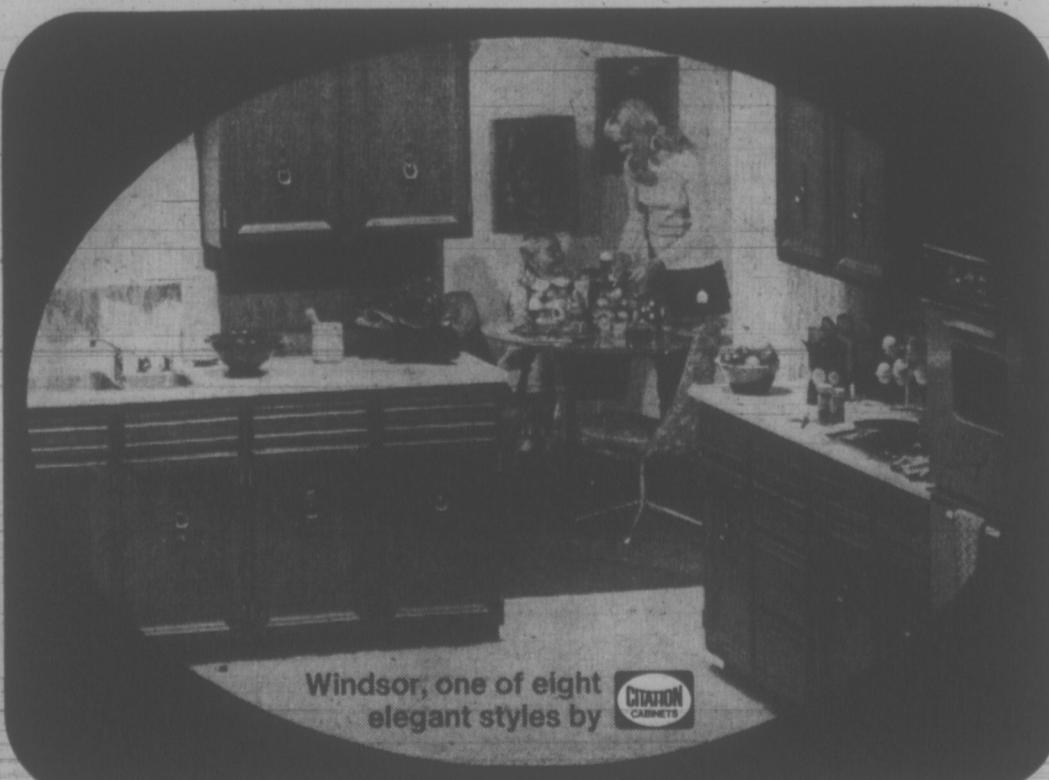

But ill-health stories not only sell papers; they also attract advertisements from the pharmaceutical industry, one of the greediest and least scrupulous in Europe, as was shown by its handling of the thalidomide affair.

Last Thursday's Bild sold millions of extra aspirins, as the chemists' salesmen admitted. It must have been read with glee by the managers of West Germany's thriving spa towns, which take pages of small ads in the businessmen's newspapers.

The press has had great success in combining the sex wave, not with the slimming wave but with the hypochondria wave. The latest issue of Unser Leben, one of the multitudinous health magazines, has a naked cover girl—illustrating artery troubles—of such squalidness that any doctor who treated her would risk being summoned before the Medical Council.

Last week's Stern magazine, the most popular in the country, had a page of jokes about hormone treatment, mostly involving the old tale of the husband going to the doctor about his impotence and the doctor running around to the patient's house to Roger his wife.

The same issue of Stern had a long study of gynaecology, which justified the cover of a 19th-century doctor reaching his hand up a lady's skirt because, as the caption explained, it would not have been proper to see her naked body.

Protesting Indians carry supplies from federal building

Indians End Washington Siege

WASHINGTON (WP) — Hundreds of rebellious U.S. Indians, claiming proudly that they have "changed the course of history," began vacating the besieged Bureau of Indian Affairs building Wednesday night, leaving behind widespread physical destruction.

"For all practical purposes, we have destroyed the BIA," declared Dennis Banks, national field director of the American Indian movement, and a leader of the Trail of Broken Treaties caravan which had occupied the building for seven days.

The Indians took with them what they claimed was 1,000 to 2,000 pounds of BIA documents, which they said contained incriminating evidence that congressmen and other public officials engaged in "scandalous, if not criminal" land deals which deprived Indians of mineral, water and property rights over many years.

Some particularly sensitive papers are being secreted in another country, spokesmen said.

Before they left, the Indians won from White House negotiators assurances that the government will not recommend prosecution for seizing and occupying the BIA building.

Also, according to a BIA spokesman, the government turned over to the protesting Indians an unspecified sum of money to help pay for the cost of transportation to their homes.

More money was provided by the National Congress of American Indians and individual donors.

Hank Adams, a chief Indian negotiator, said Wednesday night that the White House had "assisted" in obtaining $66,000 in cash, but he would not say where the cash came from.

Shortly before the Indians began filing out of the BIA building to form several motocades, Russell Means, another Trail of Broken Treaties leader, declared, "we know we definitely have changed the course of history."

Heart Attacks Claim Armchair Sportsmen

Four men died of heart attacks just watching the Clay-Frazier heavyweight fight two years ago.

An average of one man dies of a coronary attack during every National Football League game.

The statistics of cardiovascular disease in North America are frightening and are often closely related to physical fitness, or lack of fitness, in our society.

The department of health and welfare has called the sedentary habit an epidemic in Canada and made fitness a matter of national concern.

DOUBLE-HEADER is examined by Herman Pfeiffer of Eugene, Ore., who found the dual mushroom in woods near his home. Though it is probably non-poisonous, Pfeiffer has no plans to taste it.

In response to this concern a small group of students and professors at the University of Victoria launched "Project Shape-Up" this summer as a pilot project to study the feasibility of fitness evaluation clinics.

With most of the result tabulated and ready to be sent in a full report to Ottawa, Dr. John Eckerson, an exercise physiologist and director of the group, says the project was a success.

"We found we got the acceptance and co-operation of the medical profession," Eckerson said, "and the acceptance of the public — which were two of our main goals."

"Our third objective was to study the idea of a mobile fitness clinic, something like the TB clinics," he said, "to go around the province to evaluate and prescribe exercise programs to interested people."

Eckerson said with their $12,000 grant they had tested 165 people but their aim with a permanent program would be to bring costs down so that an examination would be in within the range of an average person (around $15).

In the program participants were given a stress test by working out on a treadmill while an electrocardiograph records their blood pressure and heart rate.

When the data was collected the project workers along with medical consultants evaluated the fitness level of the participant and recommended an exercise program in keeping with their own interests.

Re-evaluation tests will be done later to record any improvement after exercising.

Project worker John McKay said the results of testing don't give a very accurate picture of the general fitness of the population because so many "fitness buffs" volunteered for the project.

Of those tested in Victoria and Kelowna, half were in very poor to fair condition.

Occupation, weight, smoking, diet and hereditary factors all influenced the results, McKay said, but most of these things could be helped by exercise.

"Ideally," said Paul Thomas, another project worker, "anybody over 30 at least should have a fitness check-up before starting on an exercise program."

"But cardiologists don't have time to test anybody who wants it," he said, "and most people couldn't afford to pay him anyway. A mobile clinic wouldn't cost as much."

The group hopes to get another grant from the department of health and welfare next year to continue developing the testing clinic and relate it to local health units.

LOGGING ROADS SHOCK DIRECTOR

Dr. Bristol Foster, director of the Provincial Museum, Tuesday deplored the rapidly diminishing wilderness areas on Vancouver Island.

Speaking at a meeting of the Victoria Sierra Club, he said the few remaining unspoilt areas on the island should be set aside as parks before they are logged off.

He said he examined a map of logging roads on the island and was shocked to see that the majority of the island is criss-crossed by roads, penetrating in every direction.

"At first I thought I was looking at a map showing the island's rivers and creeks," he said. "Then I realized I was looking at logging roads."

He said there are few remaining unspoilt areas on the 300-mile long island.

"They should be picked up now before it is too late," he added. "In the past it seems no thought was given to the needs of future generations and other resources."

Foster said the island lost much recreational lands through a policy of exchanging park lands for recreational lands owned by logging companies.

In these exchange deals, he said, the parks branch lost more land than they gained elsewhere.

"In my opinion these losses should be made up," he added. "The parks branch should be reimbursed for its losses on the Island. Time is running out — something should be done quickly."

Processors Hit Curbs

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The president of the Western Food Processors Association told a Pollution Control Board inquiry Wednesday that any attempt by the provincial government to set rigid pollution standards for fruit and vegetable processing companies would cause great hardship to the industry.

Cornelius Penner said the industry is struggling to compete with low-priced imported goods and that funds were limited for improving waste treatment facilities.

"We recommend that each waste discharge problem be evaluated independently," he said.

He added that "adoption of uniform requirements would not be in the public interest and could in a number of instances result in hardship to individual companies."

Overhaul of Unions Urged by CLC Chief

VANCOUVER (CP) — The executive secretary of the Canadian Labor Congress said Wednesday that the threat of breakaway unions is one of the most serious problems confronting the Canadian labor movement.

William Dodge told the annual convention of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, that the whole labor movement must take a complete look at its structures and needs if it is to overcome the breakaway problem.

"Unfortunately, the imperfections within our unions are numerous enough that if members are looking for an excuse to quit they can be sure of finding one," he said.

"It is not that our unions have been undemocratic, rather it is that they have been unresponsive to the needs of their members."

The cries for help have been unmistakable; in bargaining demands, in rejection of negotiated settlements, in contempt for the labor establishment, in the exodus from unions of long standing which is becoming all too familiar to you in B.C. The message there has been loud and clear and again we haven't been listening."

Dodge also clashed with delegates who the previous day had attacked the CLC leadership over the question of re-affiliating the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union with the congress because of alleged Communist leanings.

He told the federation that trade unions "are in love with their constitutions."

"But how many of us are really prepared to shake up our organizational and educational methods, or functions?"

"I am as much to blame as anyone for that, but none of us has been willing to face up to the possibility that the traditional structures and methods may be totally outmoded and incapable of meeting the problems of modern industrial society."

He said he was not arguing for greater militancy or toughness.

"As with many other habits of ours, we have developed a stereotype about militancy," he said.

"If you haven't been on strike lately you are not with it. It may well be that our tendency to think strike action is the universal answer to all our collective bargaining problems may be at the root of some of our problems. Certainly it is the principle cause of the shocking state of our image."

The federation also endorsed recommendations Wednesday calling for greater organization of working women in the province.

The report of the committee on women's rights called for a study of the feasibility of negotiating the establishment of child care centres by management.

$736,000 In Grants Cancelled

OTTAWA (CP) — Two grants from the regional expansion department to Silver Shields Mines Inc. and the Jacques Cartier Mint Inc. of Toronto have been cancelled, it was announced Wednesday.

The grants, totalling $736,000, were originally announced last May in support of proposals for a silver refining plant and a commercial mine to be located in Cobalt, Ont.

The department said in a news release that an investigation into the incentives produced evidence that a member of the department had received "improper benefits" from a person or persons associated with the company, and the grants were cancelled.

TANK MOVING SPARKS RIOT

TOKYO (UPI) — The U.S. army moved 26 controversial M48 tanks from a supply depot today, touching off wild leftist demonstrations which left at least 84 police and demonstrators hurt.

Demonstrators and policemen were injured in clashes in front of the U.S. army supply and maintenance depot 24 miles southwest of Tokyo and along the highway from the depot to the port of Yokohama, about 15 miles away.

About 1,500 leftwing students and labor unionists trying to obstruct movement of the tanks gathered in front of the main gate of the depot and another 4,500 on the highway.

Drug Probe Job 'Led to Girl's Addiction'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The lawyer for a young woman who pleaded guilty in provincial court Wednesday to trafficking in LSD said his client was introduced to drugs while working for a commission investigating drug use.

Judge Michael Bolton, in asking Judge Graham Ladner for a suspended sentence, said Shannon Macfarlane, 19, was employed by a drug commission in the summer of 1971.

He said her job was to interview people on the street and members of the drug cult regarding the use of drugs.

Bolton said his client was influenced by the work and subsequently became a heroin user.

She was arrested April 13 and charged with selling two tablets of LSD to an undercover police officer.

Judge Ladner remanded her to Nov. 30 for sentence.

Trustees Plan Statement On Wage Talks

A special meeting of Greater Victoria school board was called for 5:30 p.m. today for preparation of a public statement concerning teacher salary negotiations.

"There have been quite a few statements over the air and in the papers about the teachers' position, and it's beginning to look as though the school board has rolled over and died," Trustee Peter Bunn said.

"There's been no rebuttal from the trustees who are supposed to represent the people in this matter," he said.

Bunn said a salary negotiating session would wind up shortly before the board met. The trustees would then be updated. Bunn hoped a public statement would be prepared stating the board's position.

An over-all increase of 13.3 per cent in the total amount allotted to teachers' salaries was allowed for in the board's provisional budget, approved by trustees Tuesday.

That increase included the expense of hiring additional teachers.

Barrett Rapped For UA 'Insult'

Saanich Mayor and M.L.A. Hugh Curtis today said he was ashamed of Premier Dave Barrett for derogating the United Appeal.

"He has done irreparable harm to the principle of voluntary giving and I am ashamed of him," Curtis said.

The premier said Monday the United Appeal exists because of a failure of previous governments to meet their responsibilities and should be supported transactionally until government catches up.

That was "one of the more irresponsible statements a premier" could make, said Curtis, expressing the hope Barrett was misquoted.

"It was a very shameful thing for the first elected person of B.C. to attack (the appeal). He could show some real leadership in suggesting how to correct its shortcomings."

Curtis said "literally thou-

Angel Turncoat 'Goes Off Rocker'

UKIAH, Calif. (UPI) — Hell's Angel turncoat George Wethern "went off his rocker," jabbing pencils into his eyes and choking his wife in their Mendocino county jail cell, the county sheriff reported Wednesday.

Wethern, 33, poked holes in the inside corner of both eyes and in the skin above the eyeballs in his effort to blind himself but suffered no permanent damage to his eyesight, said sheriff Renzo Bartolomie. His wife, Helen, 29, was not hurt.

Wethern and his wife owned a 153-acre ranch near Ukiah where three bodies were unearthed last week by authorities who described it as a "Hell's Angels burying ground."

Four angels were arrested and three others are sought in the slayings. In Oakland, 140 miles south of Ukiah, jury selection resumed Wednesday in the trial of Angel leader Ralph "Sonny" Barger, 34, and three other cycle gang members charged with the "bathtub murder" of a narcotics dealer last spring.

The 260-pound Wethern, whose nickname is "Baby Huey," and his wife agreed to "make a clean breast" about the illegal activities of the outlaw motorcycle gang in return for immunity from prosecution on narcotics and other charges.

In addition to Wethern, authorities promised the Wetherns protection from re-prisals for their testimony

Purge Alleged

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam charged Wednesday that President Nguyen Van Thieu's government has arrested nearly 5,000 people and shot several hundred in a new purge of Thieu's opponents in anticipation of a ceasefire. Nhan Dan, Hanoi's government newspaper, said the crackdown amounted to an intensification of the war and "seriously jeopardizes" the draft peace agreement between North Vietnam, Hanoi and the United States.

CANADA TO PROTEST RED HERRING HAUL

Vigorous protests were to be made by Canadian officials today to Soviet fishermen suspected of taking herring off the Queen Charlottes.

Federal fisheries director

W. R. Hourston of Vancouver was to meet the commander of the Soviet fishing fleet at Tsus Sound to point out this country's concern about Russia fishing just outside the 12-mile international limit in an area heavily populated with herring.

In addition, Environment Minister Jack Davis was to launch a protest through diplomatic channels in Ottawa.

"We strongly suspect they are taking herring," a fisheries department official said.

Herring fishing is stringently regulated for conservation purposes. For the five years preceding 1971, herring fishing for Canadians was banned in an effort to replenish stocks.

Davis, meanwhile, has frozen the size of the herring fleet and set quotas for catches in 1973.

The licence control plan calls for a catch limit of 50,000 tons next year, no herring fishing in the Strait of Georgia between Campbell River and Victoria and the number of vessels limited to those participating in a major way during 1971-72.

Pianist Shows Total Artistry

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

From the thoughtful, tender imagery of the two Schubert Impromptus — A-flat and G-flat major — with which Aleksei Nasedkin began his recital Wednesday, to the translucent Chopin of his final encore, it was an evening of total artistry and pianistic grandeur.

A many-faceted artist, this guest of the Victoria Symphony, he constantly amazes and delights his listener with his subtlety and perfection of a peasant dance motif, and each is complete and unflawed.

He is like a sculptor carving gigantic figures out of granite, who transfers his vision and manipulative skill to the devoted fashioning of a fragile flower.

A creative as well as interpretive musician, Nasedkin had programmed a work of his own — a piece composed in 1968 in a short sonata form.

As a composer he is characteristically virile and individual in the use of his thematic material. The piece develops in intriguing rhythmic patterns and is texturally pleasing.

The Liszt B minor Sonata is grandiose and poses ferocious technical problems that are no problem at all for such a pianist.

But when Nasedkin plays it, showering the stage with passage work of incomparable brilliance, scintillating trills and thundering octaves, it is more than a mere display piece.

Nasedkin gives to Liszt something of himself, something of his personal poetry, which is an inevitable enrichment.

The crown of the evening was, of course, Mussorgsky's fine suite — Pictures at an Exhibition.

Here the artist was in his element, moving from picture to picture, savoring each with subtle nuances of tone, delicate lines, brilliant wit and splashes of vivid color until he reached the massive canvas at the end — the Great Gate of Kiev.

Now there were masses of glowing tone from a seemingly inexhaustable pallet — great crashing chords, intervals of charm and whimsicality.

The total concept an effect of breadth and majesty that caught at the pulse.

Nasedkin is an unmanneled artist of the greatest simplicity — the most comprehensive keyboard mastery and complete involvement.

His return to the Victoria Symphony stage will be eagerly looked for.

Highway Lights Can Be Killers

Highway lights can be real killers if they're placed too close to the edge of the road, the superintendent of the British Columbia motor vehicles branch said Wednesday.

"The most glaring example of this in the Greater Victoria area is the knocked over lamp standards on the Pat Bay Highway," said Ray Hadfield.

Hadfield was addressing a roadway lighting seminar sponsored by the Vancouver Island chapter of the Illuminating Engineering Society, held in the Queen Victoria Inn.

Properly designed highway lights can be set far back from the roadside so they aren't targets for passing cars, Hadfield told 80 men attending the day-long seminar.

He singled out two lampstands by the new overpass at Quadra St. and the Pat Bay Highway as "just waiting for an accident" because they're too close to the road.

Street lights and car lights played a role in the 300 night time traffic fatalities (out of 636 in all) in B.C. in 1971, said Hadfield.

Last year out of 448,000 motor vehicles tested, 101,500 were rejected because of faulty vehicle lights, he said.

He accused North American companies of "feet-dragging" in the introduction of Halogen headlights, which are used in Europe. Halogen lights can give three-quarters more side visibility to drivers than the standard sealed beam lights, he said.

Hadfield criticized drivers why use their parking lights for other purposes than parking.

"The ultimate end would be a law that says you can't drive along the road with just parking lights on," he said.

New Towns One Solution

The Capital Regional District board will hold a special all-day meeting Nov. 30 to discuss a report on alternative residential land uses.

The meeting will be held in the district's boardroom in the Board of Trade building on Bastion Square, starting at 9:30 a.m.

The alternatives, given in a planning department report, range from continuing present policies to directing growth to various areas and to creation of two new towns, in Central Saanich and Colwood.

Plymouth likes you to get off to a good start on those cold winter mornings. So Electronic Ignition comes standard.

For years Chrysler engineers have been researching and perfecting an Electronic Ignition system to replace the conventional breaker points and condenser. Now we have it. And it's standard on all '73 Plymouth engines built in North America. Electronic Ignition is virtually maintenance free. So your engine stays in tune longer and goes further between tune-ups. It also improves cold starts and helps keep your exhaust emissions cleaner.

'73 Plymouth Duster has our space age Electronic Ignition system. And it has torsion bar-suspension for superb handling control and a smooth ride. And, like every Plymouth, Duster is built to last with Unibody construction and a 7-stage dip-and-spray process to fight rust. When it comes to size, Duster is the compact that's just big enough, just small enough, to be just right. There's room to seat five adults in comfort, room for all their luggage too. Yet its 108-inch wheelbase is easy to handle and easy to park. Choose the power you need, right up to 340 V8. Plymouth Duster. Too tough to beat. Drive it today at your Plymouth dealers.

Curved Stick Caper Caps Cougar Win

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Times Staff

An alert mind and sharp eyes are important assets to any hockey player.

Dale Cook displayed both, coach Mitch Pechet added a dash of shrewdness, and Victoria Cougars' "curved stick caper" opened the floodgates Wednesday for a 9-4 Western Canada Hockey League victory over Winnipeg Jets.

The caper was almost as devastating as the five-point performances by Dave Faulkner and Frank Hyndman. Faulkner scored three goals and set up two while Hyndman connected once and set up four as the Cougars recorded their second straight victory before a Memorial Arena crowd of 1,363.

For sheer cuteness, the curved stick episode took the cake. Here's how it happened:

The Cougars enjoyed a 4-2 lead early in the third period and seemingly were in command until the travel-wearied Jets broke loose with a pair of goals in a matter of 81 seconds. Tie game, 4-4.

It wasn't long before Victoria defenceman Rick Wil-iams "untied" it with a power-play goal. That made it 5-4 but, with about 6½ minutes left in the game, the Jets were still very much in the running.

Then, at 15:19, the Cougars knocked the sconed wind right out of the Jets. With play stopped in the Winnipeg zone, Cook, the Victoria captain, asked referee Woody Swallow to check the legality of a stick wielded by Jets' Brian Dick.

Swallow measured the curvature, ruled it illegal and tagged Dick with a two-minute minor.

Faulkner then banged in another power-play goal and ignited a four-goal outburst in three minutes.

After Faulkner scored his third goal, and Victoria's eighth, at the 18:29 mark, Winnipeg coach Gerry Brisson ordered all his players to the dressing room except for six players on the ice.

Brisson was especially incensed with Dick, and suggested the player will be fined for using the illegal stick.

Cook detected the big curve early in the opening period, went over to inform Dick and suggested tattling at that time.

Broncos Clip Kings

SUPER CURRENT — Swift Current Broncos scored two swift goals in the third period Wednesday to defeat Edmonton Oil Kings 3-2 and take a one-point lead in the Eastern Division of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Dave Williams scored his second goal of the night to give Broncos a 3-1 lead only 39 seconds after clubmate Terry McDougall had broken a tie. John Rogers scored in the first period and Wayne Perkins counted less than five minutes from the final horn for Kings.

No sir, declared Pechet, "we'll save it in case we need it later in the game."

As it turned out, Pechet showed perfect timing in his penalty calling.

As in last Saturday's 8-3 victory over the same Jets, Cougars didn't play with the domination that the score might indicate. However, the Victoria team was again served well by goaltender Sam Clegg, especially in the first two periods, and strong back-checking kept the Jets untracked over much of the route.

On attack, Cougars atoned for a shoddy passing performance with alertness and hustle.

Cougars visit New Westminster tonight, then return to Memorial Arena to face the Bruins Saturday.

Vancouver Bidding For Winter Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Vancouver is among several centres standing ready to bid for the 1976 Winter Olympics after Colorado, voted Tuesday to stop state funds that would have helped Denver stage the games.

While the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) held some hope that the Denver games could still be rescued by federal funds, the Denver organizers announced they were quitting.

And in Dublin, Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said the whole future of the Winter Olympics could be in question if Denver is unable to fulfil its commitment.

"I am sure there will be some people in the IOC who will favour winding up the Winter Olympics altogether if Denver pulls out," said Killanin, who had just returned home after touring the 1976 Summer Games site in Montreal.

"Ex-president Avery Brundage has been advocating the end of the Winter Games for some time past."

In Vancouver, Mayor Tom Campbell said the Vancouver-Garibaldi Olympic Committee will go after the Games if bids are reopened.

"When we originally made a bid for it, we felt we had the best site available in Canada," said Campbell. "We'll be a little rushed for 1976 now, but we can do it."

Vancouver was not the only possible takeover contender, as Oslo, Norway; St. Moritz, Switzerland; Innsbruck, Austria and Grenoble, France, spoke up.

"In the face of what would appear to be an overwhelming vote, it would just not be proper for us to try to stage the Games," said Carl DeTemple, president of the Denver Olympic Organizing Committee said, "even if the money were available."

DeTemple said the committee would probably consider a formal resolution today to withdraw its efforts to stage the Games and to vote the committee out of existence.

Lake Placid, N.Y., site of the 1932 Olympics, had asked to be considered as an alternative to Denver, but DeTemple said such a choice "is probably not too realistic."

"The U.S. is probably out of the running."

The IOC announced in Lausanne, Switzerland, that Kilanin would meet Monday with his three vice-presidents to consider the Winter Games situation. The vice-presidents

B.C. Clamps Soon on All Industrial Effluents

KAMLOOPS (CP) — All discharges to air, water, and land in British Columbia will be under permit "in a relatively short time," William Venables, director of the B.C.

pollution control branch, said Tuesday.

Venables made the statement at a public inquiry here into waste disposal in the food processing and agriculturally-oriented industries.

Similar hearings have already been held for forest, mining and petrochemical industries. The pollution control board is already processing pollution control permits for the forest products industry, using a specific code suggested by the first inquiry.

Similar restraints are being prepared for the mining and petrochemical industries.

The fifth and final hearing will be into sewage and garbage disposal, and will be in Victoria in April.

Venables, acting as chairman to a panel of experts, said the "political and legal aspects" of controlling pollution in industry would not be considered since the hearings are to "elicit technical information," not to "discredit or embarrass the participants."

The inquiry had earlier been boycotted by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control because it claimed the hearings were "restrictive" and did not include the broader social, environmental and economic issues.

Sask. News 'Like Cider'

TORONTO (CP) — Western Canadian news film must be flown to the CTV network's Toronto headquarters because it is too expensive to maintain a two-way microwave link, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission was told Wednesday.

Representatives of several

Western stations, applying for renewal of their broadcast licenses at a public hearing of the CRTC, said it is virtually impossible to get film to Toronto in time for the CTV's national news program because of their dependence on airline schedules.

E. W. Chapman, president of CFCN Television Ltd. of Calgary, agreed with Boyle, that it was frustrating to be unable to feed news to the network on the same day.

In effect, your deadline is in the morning," said Boyle.

Boyle, in that it improves with age.

"It's a bit sickening to hear all that jazz about the fantastic progress of technology and end up into that problem," said CRTC chairman Pierre Jutteau.

E. W. Chapman, president of CFCN Television Ltd. of Calgary, agreed with Boyle, that it was frustrating to be unable to feed news to the network on the same day.

In effect, your deadline is in the morning," said Boyle.

"If Calgary burns down in the middle of the day, you'd have to hire a special plane."

Chapman said the microwave link could be reversed by simply pushing a button. But the cost was prohibitive.

Since the start of the hearings Tuesday, commissioners had been asking witnesses to comment on complaints that insufficient material from Western Canada is carried on news and public affairs programs on both national networks.

NO POLITICS INVOLVED -MANITOBA HYDRO HEAD

WINNIPEG (CP) — Leonard Bateman, chosen to succeed David Cass-Beggs as chairman of Manitoba Hydro, says there's nothing political about his appointment to the top job.

Batemans general manager of engineering under the chairmanship of Cass-Beggs, said if the appointment had been a political one, "I wouldn't have accepted it."

Batemans, 53, a native of Winnipeg, began his career with Winnipeg Hydro in 1942 and joined Manitoba Hydro 14 years later. He said in an interview Wednesday.

"The government selected a non-political figure from within Manitoba Hydro. It was a real vote of confidence, not just in me but in the employees of Manitoba Hydro."

Batemans wouldn't say whether there was resentment among senior Manitoba Hydro staff when Cass-Beggs was appointed by the New Democratic government in 1970.

Cass-Beggs, former head of Saskatchewan Power Corp., was brought in by the government of Ed Schreyer to develop a policy for Nelson River hydro-electric development.

Rub-a-Dub-Dub, Tan Stayed in the Tub

SANDWICH BAY, England

The River Stour Society said today it will investigate why some holidaymakers complained that the tan they took home from Sandwich Bay this summer washed off in the bath.

"We think it may be due from a new form of industrial effluent getting into the sea from the River Stour," said society secretary Doune Gerber.

SPIRITWOOD, Sask. — New Democrat Elias Nedosky was officially named Wednesday as winner in the northern Saskatchewan riding of Meadow Lake, with a 30-vote margin over Conservative Albert Cadieu. Cadieu said he will apply immediately for a judicial recount.

MONTREAL — A 31-year-old woman was sentenced Wednesday to 10 years in prison for importing more than 34 pounds of hashish into Canada. Elizabeth Marie Mortimer, formerly of Prince Rupert, who has lived in England and Morocco since 1963, was arrested July 6 at Montreal International Airport.

MILWAUKIE, Ore. — Listeners wondered why radio station KYXI had gone off the air and no one answered the telephone.

One listener then telephoned police early Wednesday. They found disc jockey Michael Roberts, 22, hanging dead from a water pipe with electric wiring wrapped around his neck in the transmitter room.

A log entry written later by another station employee labelled the death a suicide. There were no indications Roberts made any references on the air about committing suicide.

Cyr said Demers was a former patient at Fleury Hospital and a patient of a doctor affiliated with the institution.

"We were not even asking for a bed, just for immediate care."

Demers died at St. Michel Hospital soon after arrival.

Acupuncture College Closes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Hernies Tong, director of the recently established College of Acupuncture and Hermetic Medicine, said Wednesday he had closed the college and was leaving for the U.S.

Tong said he had given only two lectures on the ancient Chinese art of sticking needles into the body to relieve pain since the college opened a week ago.

He said the college was closed down because "certain pressure groups" had used their influence to slant a CBC-TV news report on Tong and the college which he said was defamatory.

Tong said his sponsor, Dr. Clarence Wong, had already left for the U.S.

Dr. W. G. McLaren, director of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in B.C., said some of the college's members who had attended Tong's opening lecture returned with "some very disturbing reports."

"So we went to the CBC and suggested it should not give this man millions of dollars of free advertising. Tong didn't get a permit from the department of education and his whole performance was poorly put on. He was charging people $250 for the course."

Tong had said earlier that the college, which was taking registration for a year or more of evening lectures in acupuncture, had received its teaching licence from the provincial department of education

Indian Centres Sought

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Provincial Education Minister Eileen Dally Wednesday suggested the creation of regional resource centres, to be controlled by local Indians, to deal with the needs of Indian education.

Mrs. Dally told the annual conference of B.C. Union of Indian Chiefs such centres would involve an integrated effort of the departments of education, health and social welfare.

She did not outline a specific government program for such centres, saying the shape of the plan should be worked out by the conference delegates, and the conference should decide if white children should be admitted to the centres.

Mrs. Dally said she does not agree with the present department of education policy of taking children out of their homes to place them in residential schools, or of integrating them into the public school system.

Machinery for the regional centres could be set up this year, with training of paraprofessionals to staff them beginning in January. She also said she intends to appoint the B.C. Native Teachers' Association president, George Wilson, to a permanent department of education post.

Labor Backs Mail Boycott

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor will support a boycott of the new postal code being introduced by the federal government.

Delegates to the OFL convention passed a resolution by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers urging a boycott of the code while issues of pay and automation at the post office remain unsettled.

About 28,000 postal workers now are bargaining with the government for a new working contract. The parties now are at the conciliation board stage.

One of the major issues has been the introduction of machinery to process mail, and the postal code must be used if the new equipment is to be useful.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man who plans to study law was convicted of a criminal offence Tuesday in provincial court but reappeared Wednesday and left the court unscathed by a criminal record.

William Terrance Dougan, 20, of 660 Jones Terrace, was convicted of possession of a narcotic and granted a conditional discharge by Judge William Ostler.

He was found to be in possession of a small amount of marijuana by Victoria police Sept. 7.

Defence counsel George MacMinn told the court his client hoped to become a lawyer and a criminal conviction would prevent this. A conditional discharge is not recorded as a conviction.

Dougan declined to enter into a bond in the presence of a justice of the peace after the trial Tuesday because he thought it would mean his conviction was recorded.

He was held for a short time then released on a promise he would appear Wednesday.

He entered into the bond soon after and was released without a record.

A change of provincial court procedure became effective after a charge of assaulting a police officer was dismissed by Judge F. S. Green in the case of Peter Jones, 27, of Sidney.

Paramedic Supplies
Nearly Repaired

Repairs to complex electronic equipment used by Saanich ambulance paramedics should restore full emergency heart attack treatment within a few days.

Supplementary treatment through the use of drugs is expected "within a matter of weeks," said Saanich municipal fire committee chairman Ald. William Noel.

Telemetry equipment, which transmits to a hospital receiver a record of a patient's heartbeat, went out of service in October and remained idle because of a shortage of persons qualified to repair it.

Equipment carried in the main Saanich ambulance has

Arsonist Gets

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Donald Ronald Scott, 17, of Burnaby, was sentenced Wednesday to two years less a day after pleading guilty to arson and breaking and entering in a $400,000 school fire that destroyed the Howay elementary school in July.

He was also given an indeterminate term of two years less a day.

Earlier, his 18-year-old brother, Kenneth Earl Scott, was given a similar sentence for his part in the fire.

Witnesses traditionally state their names in full and take the oath to tell the truth with right hand on the Bible.

Defence counsel David Wilson argued that Kenneth Barber, the officer who was allegedly assaulted, gave testimony that he was a police officer, but did not say his name was Kenneth Barber, the officer named in the charge.

His name was stated before taking the oath, but was not mentioned in evidence.

Under the new procedure the oath will be taken first and the name given second.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said he could find no authority under which to oppose Wilson's submission.

"I congratulate my friend. I only hope I have an opportunity of repaying him some day," said MacIntyre.

A 21-year-old man was given a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term for possession of a narcotic.

Steven Norman Willett, of no fixed address, was checked by Victoria police at the corner of Fort and Douglas streets Nov. 8 and a gram of hashish was found in his coat pocket.

Unionist Heads Board

EDMONTON (CP) — Roy Jamha of Edmonton, president of the Alberta Federation of Labor since 1966, has been appointed chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board. It was announced Wednesday by Premier Peter Lougheed.

Jamha, 49, is provincial vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress and is a member of the University of Alberta senate and the Board of Industrial Relations.

Lougheed told the legislature the new chairman's appointment is effective immediately "and he will be assuming his full-time duties on Jan. 1."

The appointment of Jamha is a major change in policy.

"We decided to reject the former custom of a three-member board with one member representing employers, one representing labor and the chairman being independent of either background," the premier said.

Oil Pour Costly

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Freightways Ltd. was fined $500 in provincial court Wednesday for pouring oil into a city sewer. The company pleaded guilty to dumping an unspecified amount of oil Oct. 12 into the sewer system.

City bylaw officer Allan MacPherson said it was the first conviction under a recent anti-pollution amendment but legal action against other companies is anticipated.

Sterilization Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government should reinstate the Sexual Sterilization Act, the second annual convention of the women of Uniform said Tuesday. The controversial act, first approved in 1928, was removed this year by the government which said it offended basic human rights.

Those delegates favoring a resolution asking that the law be brought back said they are concerned about innocent children being brought into the world by people with "no idea of what they're doing."

Small Reserves

REGINA (CP) — Insufficient grain in store at the west coast could cause "further erosion of our reputation in serving our customers," Walter Nelson, president of the Palliser Wheat Growers Association, said Wednesday.

Nelson, in a news release, said winter is approaching and with it there will be snowslides and derailments upsetting the railway schedules and "we don't have enough reserves out there to carry us through."

Shorter Work Week

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's industrial relations board has been authorized to consider and approve applications for a shorter work week based on longer working days, Labor Minister Bert Hohol said Wednesday.

Dr. Hohol said in a prepared statement that the board has a number of applications on file and inquiries have been arriving at the rate of about 10 a week.

Fairs Head Named

REGINA (CP) — Leon Boulter, manager of the Camrose, Alta., exhibition, has been elected president of the western Canada Fairs Association for 1973, succeeding Preston Andrews of Weyburn, Sask.

Vice-presidents elected Tuesday are Harvey Wood of Yorkton, Sask.; Wilmar Dickinson of Carman, Man.; and Graham Wright of the Battlefords, Sask.

New Coroner's Act

CALGARY (CP) — Chief coroner Dr. M. M. Cantor announced proposed changes in the Alberta coroner's act Tuesday which he said would make it the most advanced in Canada.

One of the proposals would allow inquests under some circumstances where no death occurred, such as a person in a coma.

Pipe Costs Soar

EDMONTON (CP) — Rapidly-increasing construction costs are reason to build the Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline soon, D. J. Rowe, a senior engineer for Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd., said Tuesday.

"The current rate of inflation on a $5 billion line means that the cost of the project increases with each passing day by about $1 million," he told a meeting at the University of Alberta.

Vancouver Teachers Get 9.16%

VANCOUVER (CP) — The school board and the city's 2,700 teachers have asked the provincial education department to appoint a conciliator following a breakdown in contract talks.

A spokesman for the teachers said both sides had agreed to a 9.16 per cent pay increase but that the board wanted elimination of some past benefits.

The contract expires Dec. 31.

Search Continues

PENTICTON (CP) — The search for a Piper Cherokee aircraft missing since last Friday on a flight between Princeton and Grand Forks continued Wednesday. Search planes so far have covered more than 7,000 miles without sighting any trace of the missing plane or its pilot, Kenneth Thomas of Richmond.

Merger Favoured

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — The owner-electors of Abbotsford and Sumas have voted in favor of amalgamating the two districts. Following formal approval by the provincial municipal affairs department, the new district will be known as the District of Abbotsford. A district council will be elected Dec. 9.

Resort Group Meets

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Jack Simister, president and general manager of Slumber Lodge Corp., was named president of the British Columbia Motels, Resorts and Trailer Parks Association at the association's annual meeting Wednesday. He replaces Al Wawryk, manager of the Tsawwassen Motor Hotel.

Charge Dismissed

GRAND FORKS (CP) — Provincial Court Judge O.B. Larsen Wednesday dismissed a charge under Grand Forks' anti-noise bylaw brought against Boundary Forest Products. Judge Larsen ruled the Crown had failed to prove that noise from the company's mill had disturbed the peace, quiet, rest and enjoyment of nearby residents. The charge was laid July 27.

Morale Low

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The executive of the Correctional Branch Workers' Union Wednesday endorsed a request that the director of the correctional service, Selwyn Rockshorough-Smith, be dismissed because of low morale in the service. The Prince George local will vote Nov. 16 on the recommendation.

Resignation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank Reder, executive director of the British Columbia School Trustees' Association, has resigned. Reder was general secretary of the association until 1971 when the post of executive director was created. He spent 17 years with the trustee association.

VD Cases Double

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reported gonorrhoea cases in Greater Vancouver have almost doubled since 1967. Dr. Henry Kennedy, director of venereal disease control for Vancouver, said Wednesday.

There now are more than 7,000 reported cases, compared with 4,200 reported in 1967, he said.

Bribe Offered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Henry McCaffery, 19, of Philadelphia was sentenced Wednesday to three months in jail for attempting to bribe two Vancouver police constables.

Court was told that Constables G. A. Forbes and M. L. Macleman were offered $30 by the accused to forget about a charge of possession of hashish. McCaffery still faces the possession charge.

Mainland Heroin Traffickers RCMP Target

By BRUCE OBEY
Times Staff

between 400 and 500 known local addicts. The same time last year there were an estimated 150 addicts.

Statistics for the entire island showed 314 addicts in 1971 and 1244 this year.

The average local addict would be between 18 and 30 years-old," said Staples.

Most heroin habits require between three or four capsules a day and some have been known to use as many as 10 capsules.

Staples said at the present time it is difficult to assess the local effects of the Oct. 11 nation-wide narcotics sweep.

"If it hasn't slowed it down, it's certainly helped in controlling it," he said.

Twenty-five warrants were issued in Victoria and four are outstanding.

On Oct. 26 the RCMP seized one ounce of heroin and charged five Victorians with conspiracy to traffic in heroin.

The arrests were the result of a five-week investigation and not connected with the nationwide raids.

"The conspiracy charge has had as much impact as the undercover operation," said Staples, but "there is still heroin in the city."

Asked to comment on the extent of Mafia involvement in the local drug trade Staples replied, "A lot of people have a misconception of what the Mafia is."

"Narcotics rackets have been well-organized for years. The narcotics trade is one of the original areas of organized crime."

"You can't traffic in a drug, say heroin for instance, without some closely-knit system."

"Being on an island, we're rather remote from the actual source of heroin," he added.

"Rehabilitation of the addict is a most difficult thing," but "I don't think it's a hopeless situation," said Staples.

Drug addiction is similar to alcoholism. There's always the "danger of backsliding," he said.

"The word 'addiction' is less important these days than the term 'dependence,'" he said. "Some addicts can kick their physical addiction in two or three weeks without the drug, and yet, being isolated from the drug for a long time, maybe two years, they still have that psychological addiction."

Heroin addiction is immediately felt by the community in the form of break-ins, forgeries and other forms of theft favored as means of supporting the habit.

Police records show crimes in these categories recording a marked upswing over the past year.

Local RCMP and municipal police forces have increased the drug squad membership by three over the last year bringing the total to 10 throughout the city.

The members continually work long hours as the problem continues to grow.

Drug Abuse Crash Course Set

The training centre, set up in October, is working on research and curriculum for its week-long courses at the moment.

Next week will see the first of its seminars, to be attended by an invited group of interested individuals, including members of the federal department of health and welfare, whose committee on the non-medical use of drugs has funded the centre's first six months of operation.

Benedick hopes the centre will be fully operational within the next two weeks. Trainee groups will ideally be no larger than 12 persons, she said, because of the centre's limited time and space.

Museum-on-Wheels Plan Aided by Federal Grant

The Provincial Museum will receive $144,000 and the Maritime Museum $25,000 in federal grants from a national museums program which is spending $9.4 million this year.

Objective of the program is to develop the capacity of museums and art galleries across Canada to take displays on the road — to bring history and art to people outside the major centres.

Provincial museum director Bristol Foster said today that because not everyone can get to the bigger museums, Ottawa wants them and the art galleries to look outwards.

This involves things like "museumobiles" to carry displays, or possibly rail transport, he said. And moving and displaying historical material, much of it fragile, presents some problems.

Close to $150,000 of the Provincial museum's grant will be used to hire 28 staff who will be available to help the smaller museums when they ask for aid in handling displays on loan.

TEACHER TOUR

Part of that money will finance teachers from the museum who will go out to schools in the province.

"We've always wanted to do this but we've never had the money," said Foster.

The teachers could be equipped with kits developed by the museum. One on Indian face masks for example, could be used to illustrate different traditions.

Of the grant money, $47,000 will be used to help catalogue the tens of thousands of historical items the museum has. Material will be organized so it is more useful not only for display but for research purposes.

The national museums of Canada have established the Canadian Conservation Institute, a new branch of the federal museum system, to specialize in conserving historic objects and art.

REGIONAL LABS

The institute will have five regional conservation laboratories across Canada with one to be located in either Vancouver or Victoria.

It will preserve, restore and develop special techniques for transporting all types of cultural objects.

The national program aims at establishing 10 associate museums this year, ultimately having 30 or 40 across Canada. The Provincial Museum in Victoria is one of the originals.

Associate museums will have charge of displays on loan from different parts of the country and will circulate them within their province.

The $9.4 million budget for this fiscal year includes $1.5 million for special grants. The Maritime Museum's grant of $25,000, which had been announced earlier, will come from this section.

Foster noted that the national budget also provides an emergency purchase fund.

"Suppose we hear of a valuable piece of Canadiana about to be exported. This fund would mean there would be a chance to bid for it."

QUAKE JOLTS CITY

An earthquake Wednesday night felt by many Greater Victoria residents was centred just south of the San Juan Islands, a federal seismologist said today.

The tremor, which registered 3.7 on the Richter scale of 10, sent out two shock waves within seconds of each other that were felt in many surrounding areas, said Garry Rogers.

The earthquake came at 8:19 p.m. and could be felt for about 10 seconds, Rogers said:

"You can expect to get one or two earthquakes like this in the Gulf Islands every year," he said, because there are faults all over the Gulf Islands region.

Because the earthquake's centre was south of the Gulf Islands and closer to Victoria, it was felt here more than most.

Police departments were flooded with calls after the quake but there have been no reports of damage.

Board Power Seen at UVic

By DAVID CLIMENHAGA
Uvic Correspondent

The board of governors should remain the highest decision-making body at the University of Victoria, David Angus, the newly-elected chairman has said.

He said he doesn't believe the university Senate, the highest academic body, should be the last word in university policy.

"The board that gets the money must make the final decisions," he said.

"The board must take Senate recommendations very seriously," he added.

"If the Senate comes up with such things as new courses that are good for the university as a whole, then I hope we can find the financing."

Angus said he is against having students on the board. "If students were appointed in the same manner as board of governors members, it would be all right," he stated.

Board members are appointed by the provincial government or the Senate.

"There is no doubt the board is changing," Angus said, "perhaps radically."

He denied there are too many businessmen on the board, a charge often made by students and faculty members.

"I've always thought this was an unfair accusation," he said, "half the board is appointed from Senate."

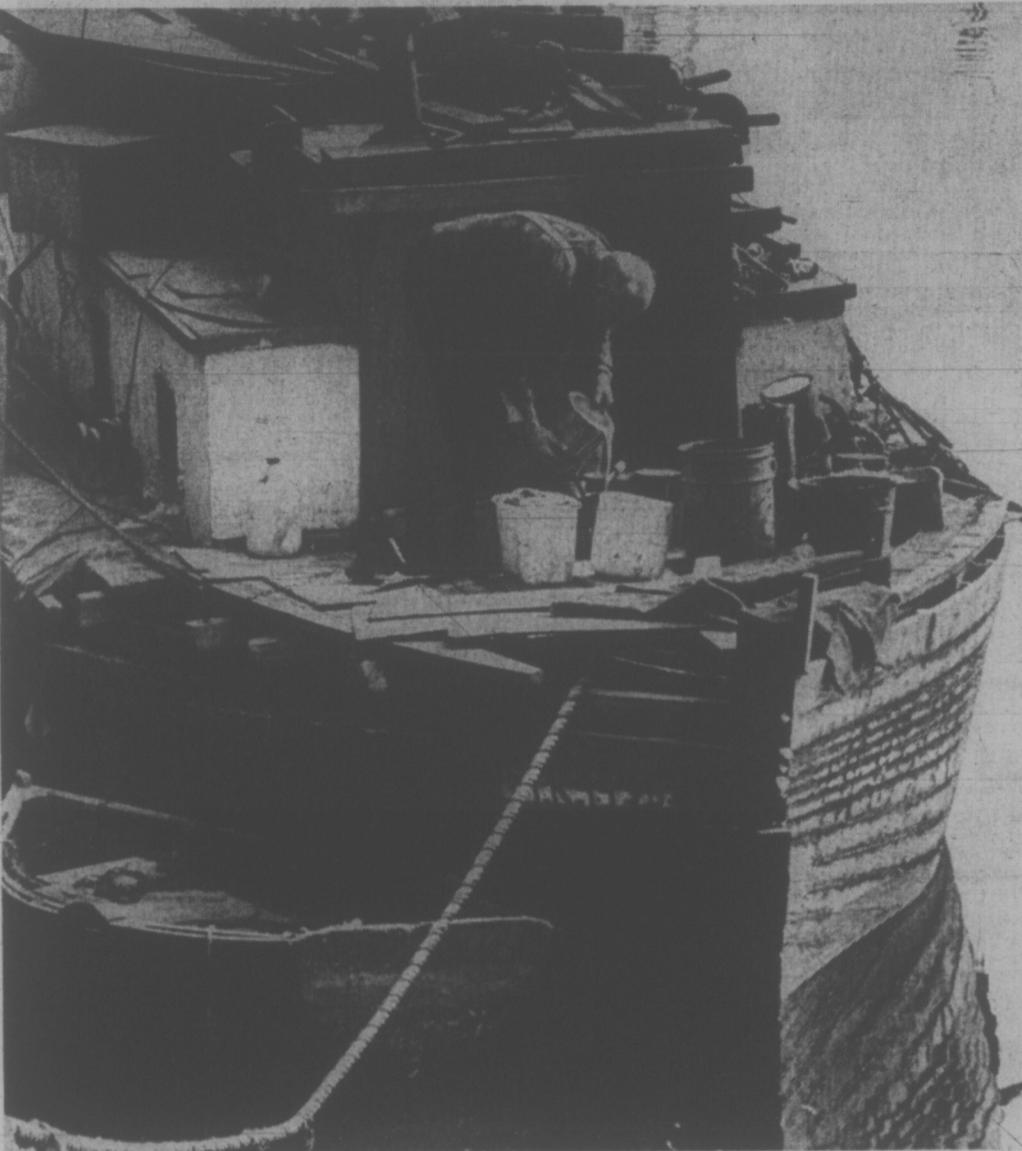

Three members of the board are elected by Senate, six appointed by the government and the university's president and chancellor are automatically members.

Angus said he is "most enthusiastic" about getting a Public Administration program for UVic.

"I hope we can follow this through," he said, "it would be a start at doing something peculiar to this university."

Angus said he could not comment on the relationship between the board and the faculty and students of the university.

They'd Talk to Him for Hours ... But No One Really Knew Him

By PAT DUFOUR

Times Staff

Did anyone really know him?

The old waterfront character died Monday and if his grave had a tombstone, it should read: "The man everyone talked to but nobody knew."

His name, some say, was Harold Laycock.

He lived for at least 25 years aboard an old, fishboat below the Johnson Street Bridge. He was seen by hundreds as he pottered about the cluttered boat home, evading the wharfage levy.

The man who probably knew him best is Steve Carter, who has operated the drawbridge for 17 years. He saw Laycock pass each day, toddling up onto to get a meagre supply of groceries.

It was only two months ago that he found out the old boy's name.

But officials have been stumped in efforts to find any relatives.

It was Carter who notified the police when Laycock collapsed Monday. Laycock was walking down the ramp, fell down and Carter cautioned him not to move, and called police. By the time the police had arrived Laycock had made another attempt to walk, collapsing for the final time.

TALK FOR HOURS

Carter said the old man used to talk to others by the hour. He'd been in failing health for the last two or three years.

"I don't know what he lived on until he got his old age pension," he said. "You'd see him carrying this little bag of groceries once a week. It was the only time he'd leave the boat."

Parsonage said another man recalls Laycock told him he was on a diet of oranges and pears because he didn't feel well. He also said Laycock admitted he'd become too weak to chop wood.

STRANGE MAN

It's the same vague story from others.

Wayne Browning, 521 Johnson, said the oldtimer built himself a ramshackle cabin at the foot of Johnson, moved his floating home there, evading the wharfage levy.

What of the men who talked to Laycock during the many years he was a waterfront dweller?

Most of them live around the area. One is a fisherman, "Blondie" McIlroy, who lives aboard his boat. The others mostly live out their lives in Johnson Street hotel rooms.

MINNESOTA?

McIlroy said: "I never really knew the man."

As an afterthought he added, "I think he was born in Minnesota."

Frank Parsons, 548 Johnson, said he hasn't talked to Laycock for two years, describes him as a strange man who was hard to know.

"I do know that after the war he locked himself up in his boat and refused to come out. Finally the police found him getting by on U.S. Army K rations."

He thinks, starts talking again:

"He did tell me he was born in Yorkshire and that during the Depression he and his dad went to Australia and New Zealand looking for work. They found nothing and came back."

CITY LIGHTS OBSCURE STARS

Just as surely as water pollution hurts sea life, light pollution is hurting Victoria's Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

Astronomer J. Murray Fletcher brought that message Wednesday to the local group most responsible for the light — the Vancouver Island chapter of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

"There's too much light around," Fletcher complained to 80 society members attending a day-long roadway lighting seminar at the Queen Victoria Inn.

The light of thousands of mercury vapor lights lining Victoria area streets and highways competes each night with the small light of stars the astronomers are trying to see with the observatory telescope.

Light pollution at the observatory in Toronto is so bad you can go outside on a clear night and read a newspaper outside," he said.

The Toronto observatory is almost useless now, he added.

Fletcher had some impractical solutions to the light pollution problem — such as turning all the street lights off at night, or painting all the highways black so they would absorb light.

He had some down-to-earth suggestions as well. Better shielding of street lights so less light escapes into the sky and more is directed onto the road would help, he said.

Putting a yellow filter on the mercury vapor lights, the area and observatories near major cities, he said.

Light pollution at the observatory in Toronto is so bad you can go outside on a clear night and read a newspaper outside," he said.

The real problem is this going to cost money," said Fletcher. And light pollution just isn't a top priority with most people, he admitted.

Putting a yellow filter on the mercury vapor lights, the blue-white street and highway lights that are the main culprits for astronomers, would be a second way," said Fletcher.

Such a filter wouldn't affect the visible light emitted but would eliminate the invisible ultra-violet light emitted by mercury vapor lights, which interferes with star-gazing.

Third solution would be to turn off a street light, perhaps a high-pressure sodium vapor light, that doesn't give out ultra-violet light, Fletcher said.

"He had some down-to-earth suggestions as well. Better shielding of street lights so less light escapes into the sky and more is directed onto the road would help, he said.

China Puts Its Young And Old Up Front

NEW YORK (UPI) — The children of the People's Republic of China are the apples of their country's eyes.

With round, rosy cheeks and eyes that dance at play and work, the boys and girls of this nation with one-fourth of the world's population really are treated like hothouse plants.

Dr. Effie Ellis, a high-ranking black American woman physician, painted that picture on her return from a 15-day tour of China. In a telephone interview from her headquarters at the American Medical Association (AMA) in Chicago, Dr. Ellis said she is "highly excited about the great importance China places on children."

"The children are nurtured as we would nurture our most valuable plant," she said.

Dr. Ellis and nine other black physicians went to China as a delegation from the National Medical Association, the organization for America's Negro doctors. She was the only woman in the group. During their tour of Kwangchow, Shanghai, Peking and Changsha (a trip of 3,000 miles) the American doctors visited hospitals, clinics, factories, textile mills, communes, schools, homes, a school for the deaf.

"I was especially interested in service to mothers and children, the elderly, and mental health," Dr. Ellis said.

"In China you cannot look at these in isolation. You look at the whole social fabric. Where health is concerned, the whole purpose is to prevent illnesses and to keep the people in good condition to serve the country. There is a great emphasis on staying well."

From what she saw during her visit, Dr. Ellis said she thinks the children of China are healthy and happy in that society. Adolescents do not revolt. The Chinese are proud of no alcoholism, no venereal disease, no prostitution.

"But it is the children the Chinese people point to with the greatest pride. From kindergarten through adolescence, the children are treated as what they are — the future of the nation," she said.

Share Same Desire

"The Chinese are trying to provide children who are physically, emotionally and morally adequate. We have the same desire in America."

In America those desires need to be better met, according to Dr. Ellis.

She said that America's children of today will be the ones dealing with China's new adults in the decades ahead. "They must be as well prepared," she said.

Already the Chinese children at the adolescent level are a little ahead, she said. No narcotics problem, no venereal disease, no rebelling against authority — at least none that is reported, according to Dr. Ellis.

Child's Sin Not 'Grievous'

TORONTO (CP)

— Although parents must tell their children what is sinful and what is not, they should not attach the label of "grievous sin" on specific actions of impurity, says a leading Roman Catholic exponent of sex education for children.

Rev. Leo Lafreniere of North Bay, Ont., says such labels should not be used because "it is very doubtful there can be a serious sin in matters of purity before a child reaches the age of puberty, and even then I would not ready to commit myself before I knew what kind of sex instruction has been given them."

Father Lafreniere, co-ordinator of family life and sex education for the Nipissing separate school district who addressed a recent meeting of Parents Without Partners here, said that masturbation among boys creates a problem.

"We all know it is widespread," he told the meeting. "We must not encourage it by saying 'Don't worry, it is part of your normal development.'

or we must not take the opposite attitude and say: 'It is a mortal sin for which you will be damned.'

"I feel that such a habit must be dealt with indirectly by creating interests in other fields of activities."

Answering questions from the audience after his speech, Father Lafreniere said that while he does not advocate common-law marriage, "it can be a union conducive to a better relationship between a man and a woman."

But he added that people who love one another will usually want to sanctify their relationship through marriage.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously Oct. 24 that Father Lafreniere criticized the Roman Catholic Church for refusing to change time-worn dictums which condemn common-law marriages.

munization program at some time in the recent past hadn't been widespread enough to protect all children.)

Q: Did you visit any medical schools?

A: "Once in Kwangchow and the Chinese were very proud of the fact that 50 per cent of the students were women. The students were in their mid-20s. It is remarkable what has happened to women in the 23 years of the People's Republic of China. They were given equality under law with men. It is not completely achieved but moving in that direction."

No Orphanages Needed

Q: Did you see any orphanages?

A: "No. Since the children are considered the children of the state it is unlikely that orphanages would be needed. And since many parents work it is something to see how the grandparents are utilized in the rearing of the grandchildren."

Q: What about the older people. What kind of homes do the Chinese have for the old folks?

A: "Our hosts lost patience with us when we asked about nursing homes and what happens to the older people. They told us that the older persons have done their work and served and deserve to be treated importantly."

"The idea is that everybody helps everybody else. Instead of being put on a shelf, the grandparents have a very important role with the grandchildren. They take them to cultural events. They play singing and clapping and marching games with them. The children sing and dance a lot."

Dr. Ellis, who has two grandchildren, said what she saw made her think that she will have to try to be better grandma.

"We could learn from China about the elderly in society," she said. "The first thing — the importance of grandparents."

"When you see the children swinging on the hands of their grandparents and smiling, you see that the grandparents are making a very important contribution."

"When you consider how women were kept down before this is remarkable."

Q: Is there vision screening in the schools?

A: "We asked about this as there were just a few children with glasses. I really don't know. But I have the feeling that since children get so much attention everywhere as individuals that those with vision problems are given help when they need it."

Q: What about measures to insure adequate dental health of school children?

A: "They get dental care everywhere. In homes, factories, communes, schools."

THE PILL 'CLEARED'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian report on oral contraceptives will be available soon, but in the meantime Health Minister John Munro has drawn attention to a British report indicating there is no evidence that "the pill" in recommended doses causes cancer.

In a statement this week,

Mr. Munro said the committee on safety of medicines in Great Britain reported that findings where oral contraceptives caused cancer in rats and mice "cannot be interpreted as constituting carcinogenic (cancer-causing) hazards to women when these preparations are used ... at the recommended dosages."

The Joys (and Horrors) Of School's Open House

This is the time of year when elementary schools traditionally hold open house for parents.

The children spend the entire week before open house cleaning all the peach pits and bits of blue crayon out of their desks, leaving only test papers with "Good Work, Johnny" inscribed across the top for their parents to see. In addition, our children often leave notes for us inside their desks which read "Hi, Mom" or "Isn't our teacher a jerk?"

Open house in kindergarten is probably the most memorable, in that you must sit in little red chairs with your knees under your chin and worry about where your skirt is.

"What about tying his shoes?" one mother broke in. "Couldn't you save out maybe 10 minutes in the afternoon for bow-making? Not fancy bows. I don't need him to wrap Christmas packages or anything. Just shoes."

"And zippers," another mother chimed in. "Especially those zippers on jackets where you have to put the zipper together at the bottom to pull it up."

Miss Jones looked a bit shaken. I don't know whether she integrated any personalities that year, but by June all the children could make dandy bows.

Midwives Strive For Recognition

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian nurses working in the field of midwifery are looking at ways in which communication between them can be improved, Pat Hayes said this week.

Mrs. Hayes, a graduate student at the University of Alberta health services administration, said Canada is the only country in the world where the practice of midwifery in nursing is not recognized.

She was one of 12 nurses from across Canada who attended the recent week-long congress of the International Confederation of midwives in Washington.

About 2,000 midwives from 95 countries attended the congress which ended Nov. 3. The organization is dedicated to the improvement of maternal and infant care.

"It was the first opportunity we Canadians had to get together and discuss common concerns and we now are in the very early stages of trying to set up ways to improve communication between us," Mrs. Hayes said in an interview.

She said that many Canadian nurses in the northern regions are unofficially considered midwives.

Music, Movies For Student Commuters

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — It's music or movies now for 45 students of Killarney who commute 70 miles each way by bus to Lo-Ellen Park secondary school.

Robert Bradley, superintendent of schools for the Sudbury board of education, thought of the idea of installing equipment for films and music on the 50-seat yellow bus.

The bus has a silver, daylight screen at the front end.

Midway down the aisle there is a 16-millimetre automatic projector while a portable generator is at the back.

There also are tape-recorders and plenty of tapes with a wide range of music.

Dangling above each student is a pair of earphones.

Forecast for Friday, Nov. 10, 1972

By SYDNEY DANNER

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You achieve through self-reliance. Those who offer aid are not equipped to do so. Know and check various aspects of your life areas. Gemini and Virgo individuals could find themselves in trouble.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't chide, push or cajole. Light touch is best. You have enough necessities.

One at a time has answers. Open lines of communication. Your former, a congenital concept. Find ways of reaching members.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep promises but don't become inexplicably involved with persons, especially unrealistic ones. Avoid fooling yourself. You won't get something for nothing. Proceed from the valid premise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are in a position to make a killing. One who aided you in past now requests that you return the favor. You will be asked to do what could be involved. Question of marriage or partnership is paramount.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Watch what you start. Round out programs. You tend now to draw people to you with their capabilities. That's fine but don't waste energy on those who refuse also to aid themselves. Study Aries.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stress originality, approachability, independence. Give lots of chance to compete with impulse. Then you overcome fear to win positions and money. Person who pushes you is covering up for lack of knowledge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Much that you took for granted is about to be taken from you. Key now is to remember recent lessons. Review properly values. You have something others can use. Don't sell yourself short. Family member can play important role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Utilize talents. Display versatility.

One who makes insinuations according to his own second thoughts. Forces tend to be scattered. Answers relative does not really have SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Question your motives. Pay close attention. Be aware of details. Slipshod methods now prove costly. Inevitably, when truth appears a restriction may actually have been removed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): One individual may not have cards on table. Your judgment is correct. Plan things well. Don't let your detours. You will comprehend. Remain confident.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look and work behind scenes. What appears obvious may actually be the case. You are in a position to succeed. Taurus, Libra persons could figure prominently. You get what you want most of as you desire.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accept is the best attitude. You are in a position to realize your ambitions. Sagittarius is on your side. Know it and plan accordingly. You will make much about yourself, about where you are going and why.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are in a position to make a killing. One who aided you in past now requests that you return the favor. You will be asked to do what could be involved. Question of marriage or partnership is paramount.

Watch Signature

DEAR ABBY: Forgive me if I make many mistakes, but I was not brought up in English. I am a widow, 45 years old, and lonely for male companionship, as are many others. I read an advertisement promising dating by computers. I foolishly answered this ad.

I paid $295 and was promised two "computer matched" dates per month over a period of 36 months. The contract was full of phrases like "if possible" and "if necessary" and "do not guarantee." But is there no recourse against these people who disappeared thin air? I should have been smart enough to see this trap, but they talk so fast while they are with you, that like an idiot you sign the contract without realizing that you are being taken.

Anyway, after I paid my money, and no dates were arranged, I went to the police with my contract and all the correspondence. They looked it over and said that it had been so cleverly worded, I Crosswalk gamblers beware — Pedestrian Safety Week is coming after you.

Crosswalk abuse is a leading cause of accidents involving pedestrians, says John Reeves, general manager of the Capital Region Safety Council. The council's Pedestrian Safety Week starts Monday Nov. 13.

Pedestrians who disobey crosswalk signals, who don't watch for cars turning into a crosswalk or who stop to talk while in mid-crossing are frequent accident victims.

Motorists who overtake at a crosswalk are singled out by Reeves as other "gamblers" whom the police of the capital region will be hitting extra hard during the coming week.

Inspector Dick Berry, traffic inspector for Victoria, points out that pedestrian offences are punishable by a $20 fine, but adds that duty policemen use "common sense" where offenders are concerned.

"If it's an elderly person who has just stepped off the sidewalk, they'll get a warning. But there are always the flagrant offenders."

Less Injuries

Berry says he's pleased that pedestrian injuries for Victoria are down this year over the same period in 1971 and "we'd like to keep it that way."

A film showing what happens when vehicle and pedestrian collide will be shown on Cable 10's You and the Law Thursday, Nov. 16, at 7:30 p.m., says Sgt. Bill Chisholm of Saanich police.

"It shows, in slow motion, that the pedestrian is no match for a vehicle," says Chisholm, who warns pedestrians that there will be a patrol car checking the underpass near the Town and Country shopping centre during next week.

"Too many people try dashing across the road instead of using the underpass," says Chisholm.

Last year in the capital region district, seven pedestrians were killed and 158 injured in road accidents. The total for this year so far is four dead and 101 injured.

Worst Ahead

Chisholm says, however, that "the worst months are ahead," when poor weather conditions and longer hours of darkness add to the accident toll. He advises pedestrians out at night to wear something light or attach reflective tape to dark clothing.

Reeves, of the safety council, hopes for improvement in accident statistics.

"It looks as if this year won't be much different from last ... although we hope there won't be as many killed. We're always optimistic in this business."

Common accident causes as they appear in safety council statistics include:

- Disobeying crosswalk signals
- Stepping off the curb without looking
- Stepping out from between parked cars
- Running across the street
- Not watching for cars turning into a crosswalk
- Jaywalking mid-block
- Stopping at a mid-crosswalk
- Vehicles overtaking at a crosswalk
- Motorists failing to yield right of way.

Sovereign Duties Full-Time?

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles will be 24 on Nov. 14 and friends say it may not be long before he gives up his naval career and starts full time at learning the duties of a British sovereign.

In royal circles it is said Sub-Lieut. Windsor, heir to the British throne, probably will spend his birthday on naval duties aboard the frigate Minerva which he is due to join shortly. He will celebrate the following weekend when he gets his Friday night to Monday morning shore leave.

The prince's usual personal celebration is to invite half a dozen close friends for drinks in his Buckingham Palace suite and then on to a West End show and dinner in some quiet restaurant afterward.

Charles' decision that he isn't really cut out to be a sailor came as a surprise to those who remembered his enthusiasm when he went to Dartmouth Naval College last year.

But he has found that instead of an adventurous open-air life, he has had to spend long days in the classroom with his fellow sub-lieutenants learning about the complicated electronic gadgets of a modern navy.

Charles already has special leave to return to the Royal Air Force Flying School for an advanced course in the newest jets. He's happier in the air than at sea.

The prince has matured during the past 12 months, partly thanks to his naval service, partly because he is now much more in touch with affairs of state.

While he has been at Dartmouth regular dispatch cases of documents have come from Queen Elizabeth's office for Charles to read, ponder upon and make decisions about as he would have to do if he were king.

If he returns to civilian life to assist his mother with state and official activities, Charles may well begin to think about marriage.

He has met many beautiful and well-born girls during the past year as he moved around on naval service. Some even meet the conditions he has said himself are necessary for a future queen — "She would have to be a special kind of person and know what it's all about."

Charles seems to have a personal preference for blondes — he is seen escorting about five times as many blondes as brunettes or redheads.

Among his frequent companions are two blondes. One is model Georgina Russell, whose father is British ambassador to Madrid. Another is Emma Soames, daughter of a British common market representative and granddaughter of Winston Churchill.

Charles has made known other qualities he likes in women:

"I like a girl with intelligence but hate her to be more clever than I am — and show it."

He also has said he likes girls "who do things. It makes for better talk."

to win. East discarded a spade — and West was now known to have the doubleton J-9 of diamonds remaining.

West played back a club, hoping that perhaps East had both the ace and king in this suit. But Crawford captured East's king with the ace, and led his remaining diamond, inserting dummy's ten when West followed suit with the nine. On the diamond king South discarded a club, and on the fifth diamond he tossed away another club. At the end he conceded a club trick to the defenders. Thus his only losers were a diamond and a club.

When the deal was replayed, the British North-South pair also arrived at a five-heart contract, which, however, was not doubled. So South had no clue as to where the queen of trumps was; and he deferred attacking trumps at once. Instead, after ruffing the opening spade lead, he tried to cash the ace and king of diamonds. With East ruffing the diamond king, the contract was defeated.

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

After ruffing the opening spade lead, Crawford paused for reflection. His first problem was how to play the trump suit. He resolved this in short order. With West having doubled the final five-heart contract, West was the favorite to have the queen of trumps. So, at trick two, Crawford played the ace of trumps, intending to finesse against West on the next trump lead.

As is evident, however, he didn't have to finesse, for when he led a second trump, West played the queen, and dummy's king won the trick as East followed suit. Having eliminated the possible trump loser, Crawford's problem of how to play the diamond suit was resolved easily.

After cashing the ace of diamonds, he trumped a spade. He then led a low diamond but of the South hand, and when West put up the queen, Crawford allowed the queen

TERMS OF PUBLICATION
The Victoria Press Ltd. shall not be liable for non-insertion of any advertisement or for delay in publishing any advertisement for the time specified in the item in question.

In the event of an error occurring in the liability of Victoria Press Ltd. shall not exceed the charge for the item in question.

All claims or errors in publication or in any advertisement thereafter, and if not made shall not be considered. No claim will be accepted for any error or omission in the insertion of an incorrect insertion nor for errors in the advertising copy.

All estimates of cost are approximate. Advertisements are charged for space actually used.

All advertising copy will be subject to the approval of the Victoria Press Ltd. who reserves the right in its sole discretion to classify, reject or insert copy.

Advertisements must comply with the British Columbia Advertising Standards Council which prohibits any advertising that discriminates against persons on the basis of race, religion, sex, colour, nationality, ancestry or place of origin, or age. If this age limit is 65 years or less, the condition is justified by a bona fide requirement for the work in question.

While every endeavour will be made to return all manuscripts to the advertiser as soon as possible, we accept no liability for damage or loss alleged to arise through either failure or delay in forwarding manuscripts. Please advise whether or negligence or otherwise.

MAN NOT GUILTY IN HUNTING DEATH

NANAIMO (CP) — A man charged with the non-capital murder of a hunting companion whose body was never found was found not guilty Tuesday night by a B.C. Supreme Court jury.

The jury deliberated for just over two hours before acquitting Michael Bascom Darwin, charged with the shooting death of Roger Banks of Vancouver.

The Crown's main witness was Maxwell Baile, who is serving a five-year term for armed robbery. He testified he saw Darwin shoot Banks at a cabin on Lasqueti Island, north of Nanaimo in Georgia Strait, on Sept. 16, 1971, while the three of them were on a hunting trip.

Defence lawyer Leonard Doulet told the jury that Baile's testimony could not be believed. He said the Crown had not proved Roger Banks is dead.

Farmland Sought

NANAIMO — Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Wednesday too much land is being taken up by developers and not enough is being left for farming to assure a balanced economy.

He told the Greater Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce one of his tasks will be to preserve farmland for farming purposes.

Farmers are aware of the situation and in many cases refuse to sell, he said.

"Despite the fact that they can make large capital gains by selling their land, they realize the importance of keeping it for agricultural purposes," he said.

No Down Payment, No Payment 'til Jan. '73

on new accounts or no increase in payments on open accounts 'til Jan. 1973. Regular service charges will be added on the monthly balance of each account.

No Blame in Fire Death

duncan cowichan

DUNCAN — The establishment of a fire prevention program on the Cowichan Indian Reserve was recommended Tuesday evening by a coroner's jury that was looking into the death of a nine-year-old girl in a house fire Oct. 5.

The jury attached no blame to the death of Barbara Bagley, whose body was found by a fireman on a bed in the charred remains. It recommended that the Cowichan Indian Band's fire protection committee and the fire marshal work closely together to see that the program is set up.

The jury was told by Nanaimo pathologist Dr. Stanley Grant that the girl died of carbon monoxide poisoning. Coroner Tom Lines told the jurors he had dispensed with the customary viewing of the body because it was so severely burned.

Witnesses testified that the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Bagley with his visiting brother and his wife from Nanaimo, were at a drive-in theatre at the time of the death.

The two oldest Bagley children, Richard, 12 and Emily, 11, were left in charge of Barbara, Florence, 6, and Mike, 4. A fifth child was in the hospital.

The older children said that Barbara had gone to bed early in the evening. They also told the jury the two smallest children had been playing with matches near the oil stove in the kitchen where the fire later started.

Emily said she was the first to be awakened by smoke. Richard and Emily said they both called out to Barbara, heard her answer, but, when they were outside with the rest of the children, Barbara didn't come.

It could not be established why Barbara was not able to save herself. Her father testified that she was a heavy sleeper but was healthy.

Andrew Tom, nearest neighbor to the Bagley family, said he told his wife to call the fire department after she told him there was a fire when she woke him for "graveyard shift."

Tom said that, after being advised by the children that Barbara was still in the burning house on Mission Road, he could not get in because of the intense heat.

He said the family had a fire before in their Boys' Road house.

Mr. and Mrs. Bagley said they returned home from the drive-in to see their house "in flames." Mrs. Bagley testified she had turned the oil stove in the kitchen on low before going out earlier that evening. Although they had no trouble with the stove, Mrs. Bagley said there had been a problem with the stove pipe.

Ship Fined $3,000 For Harbor Pollution

NANAIMO — A $3,000 fine was imposed Wednesday against a ship found guilty of polluting Nanaimo harbor with oil July 5.

M.V. Besseggen was found guilty by provincial court

Judge Paddy Bowen-Colthurst after a four-day trial. The amount of spillage was not disclosed but indications were that it was considerable.

Cause of the spill was believed to be an oil valve, either faulty or else left open.

The Devil and Miss Jones (xxxx), on 6 at 8:30. Maggie Smith won an Oscar for her portrayal of the extraordinary teacher who ignores the usual curriculum to instruct her pupils in an unusual philosophy of life in this 1969 drama.

Little Miss Broadway (xx), on 11 at 2:30. Routine Shirley Temple comedy-vintage 1938.

The Busy Body (xx), on 5 at 4. 1967 comedy starring Sid Caesar and Anne Baxter.

City Beneath the Sea (xx), on 12 at 1:30. Another sci-fi adventure, this one starring Stuart Whitman and Robert Wagner.

Daring Game (xx), on 13 at 7:30. Lloyd Bridges stars in this 1963 underwater adventure.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (xxxx), on 6 at 8:30. Elizabeth Taylor, Rock Hudson, the late James Dean and Mercedes McCambridge. (The movie concludes Monday night, same time and channel.)

In the Heat of the Night (xxxx), on 2 at 9. An Oscar-winning crime-drama starring Rod Steiger as a prejudiced Southern police chief working on a murder case with a proud, black Northern detective played to perfection by Poitier. Steiger deservedly won the Oscar for his 1967 role.

Giant (xxxx), on 5 at 9. (Part 1.) Edna Ferber's sprawling saga of a proud Texas family from the 1930s to the 1950s when the oil boom shaped destinies. Excellent cast with Elizabeth Taylor, Rock Hudson, the late James Dean and Mercedes McCambridge. (The movie concludes Monday night, same time and channel.)

John and Mary (xxx), on 8 at 9. Dustin Hoffman and Mia Farrow play a couple who meet at a singles bar and begin a casual love affair. Filmed on-location in Manhattan in 1969.

Hornet's Nest (xx), on 7 at 11. A made-in-Italy Second World War adventure starring Rock Hudson as a U.S. Army paratrooper.

In Cold Blood (xxxx), on 12 at 11. A star-studded cast highlights this otherwise muddled account of the liberation of Paris from the Nazis. This 1966 drama includes Orson Wells, Kirk Douglas and Glenn Ford.

population and its leaders who adhered to a traditional Church that itself had not perceived the dynamism of the new forces, seeing them as only destructive. Premier Duplessis also clung to ancient ways and fought to repress the new socio-economic concepts.

It was a time in Quebec when civil liberties were at a very low ebb and where the exercise of the most ordinary rights of trade union organizations were apt to result in the union leaders being pitched into jail.

In CBC Radio's reassessment of those explosive years, publisher Conrad Black, who is now writing a biography of Duplessis, discusses the Duplessis regime. Also heard is Pierre Maheu, founder and editor of the left-wing magazine Parti Pris, and now an editor with NFB. It was Maheu who wrote the scenario for Duplessis et apres.

Host Hubert Langlois introduces relevant material which includes brief excerpts from Duplessis' speeches, from the successful plays Charbonneau et le Chef (originally published as a book), which was dramatized on both CBC AM and FM Radio, and questions and answers from Catechisme de l'électeur. The latter documents, distributed by the Duplessis organization written in the format of a religious catechism, explained why electors would make a grave error in voting for the opposition party.

The King Must Die was prepared for CBC Radio by Patrick Barnard and produced in Montreal by Richard Spry.

Wendy Hiller and Joseph Shaw

Great British Actress Stars in CBC Drama

Wendy Hiller, whose distinguished acting career spans four decades, from a Savoy beginning in the 1930s to the international stage, TV and movie scene of the 1970s, is special guest star in a CBC-TV Sunday at Nine film drama, The Veteran and The Lady, for telecast on Nov. 12.

The distinguished Miss Hiller, possessor of a celebrated name in Britain and around the world, plays her first Canadian role as the lady of the title, opposite Joseph Shaw, who also stars, as the veteran.

The drama, by noted Canadian author Charles Israel, is a story of mature love and loneliness. Roger (Shaw), an elderly veteran hospitalized for an old war wound, faces a bleak future as he contemplates his release. Alone in the world, he is befriended by a young woman volunteer at the hospital, who invites him to rent a room in her home, which she shares with a widowed mother — Teresa (Miss Hiller). At first the two older people resent each other, but a relationship develops and they begin to contemplate the future with renewed hope.

The Veteran and The Lady is directed by Graham Parker, and produced by Ronald Weyman.

Following Miss Hiller's visit to Toronto last summer to take part in the filming of The Veteran and The Lady, she returned to London (England) to portray the late Queen Mary in a new stage play, Crown Matrimonial, which opened in the West End mid-October to general applause. Said The Times: "Wendy Hiller's Queen Mary, ramrod-backed and ruling the household... comes over with photographic accuracy." The play is about the abdication of Edward VIII as it affected the royal family.

The veteran actress made her first impact on international audiences in the celebrated film version of G. Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, in which she played Eliza Doolittle opposite Leslie Howard's Professor Higgins. It was a brilliant performance which (in 1938) won her a nomination for an Academy Award — but it was not until 20 years later, in 1958, that she did win an Oscar, for her portrayal of an English hotel manageress in the screen version of Separate Tables.

Wendy Hiller's association with Bernard Shaw began when, as a young actress, she was selected by the great man to appear in Pygmalion and St. Joan at the 1936 Malvern Festival.

She recalls, "I remember being terribly awed when he invited me to attend the theatre with him one night. We sat in the stalls (orchestra), and he said that Charlotte, his wife, preferred to sit in the dress circle (front balcony), so she was not sitting with us. After the performance, he excused himself, saying, 'My dear, I'd love to escort you home, but (indicating the balcony)... Charlotte, you know.'

Shaw was so pleased with the young Hiller that when the film versions of his Pygmalion and Major Barbara came to be made, she got the plum feminine roles in both.

Wendy Hiller and her husband, playwright Ronald Gow, became personal friends of Shaw, and during the war years would bicycle from their country home to Ayot St. Lawrence, where the Shaws lived.

"He was pretty frail by then, but just as great a wit and personality as ever," she says. She recalls her husband taking home movies of herself and Shaw: "Just before we were to make our 'entrance' he drew himself up, and flicked his white hair and eyebrows upwards, and then he was ready for the camera."

Miss Hiller has many notes and postcards that Shaw wrote her, a collection that memorabilia collectors have offered to buy — "but I won't sell them. Would you?"

The British actress, who was awarded the Order of the British Empire in 1971, has combined a fulfilling career with an equally successful marriage since she first won recognition in England in 1935 in her husband's hit play, Love on the Dole. Her many movies include: I Know Where I'm Going (1947), Something of Value (1956), Separate Tables (1958), Sons and Lovers (1960), Toys in the Attic (1962), A Man For All Seasons (1966), and David Copperfield (1969). On stage, in addition to the Shaw plays, she has appeared in: Cradle Song, Tess of the D'Urbervilles, The Heiress (New York), Waters Of The Moon, Moon for the Misbegotten (New York), Toys In the Attic, The Aspern Papers (New York), The Battle of Shrivings, and Ghosts, among many others. She has made periodic and noteworthy appearances on British television.

Miss Hiller appears briefly in a scene in Harry Rasky's upcoming CBC-TV film The Wit and World of G. Bernard Shaw (for telecast Nov. 15). It is a bit of old newsreel film, showing Shaw making a speech at a function in the thirties. Seated beside Shaw is the young Wendy Hiller.

Human Journey Series

Canadians are probably more interested in their home and what's in it than anything else in their lives. The purchase of a home is the largest investment most individuals make, and for apartment dwellers the rent is the largest expenditure in their monthly budget. The current concern about housing and the ability of our society to provide sufficient homes to suit the needs of every citizen, touch every Canadian.

Where We Live, a Bronze Medal winner at this year's New York Film and Television Festival, and an episode in The Human Journey series of specials, focuses on those things that can be applied to ease Canada's current housing dilemma, through interviews with architects and planners, with builders and with people who own a home, when it is re-telecast on Sunday, November 12, 10:00-11:00 p.m.

The program talks with Jack Diamond, architect and planner and partner in the Toronto architectural firm of Diamond and Myers. Diamond suggests that the single family home is quickly becoming a thing of the past, simply because the costs of servicing the house represent too great a financial burden on the home owner. At the request of CTV, Diamond developed a highly innovative concept of increasing the density of a downtown residential block without displacing the present residents or demolishing existing homes. He has built a model of this test area, and by showing film of the model and the actual block, the program demonstrates how the site could look through creative planning.

Where We Live also speaks to Charles Watson, Toronto developer of Peel Village in Brampton, Ontario, who questions whether he, and other developers have the right to make the level of profit they have been allowed to make. Mayor Rod Sykes of Calgary is interviewed as well, who, as mayor of the only Canadian city with a housing surplus for low income families, calls home ownership one of the best investments in social stability.

In Sydney, Nova Scotia, the program takes a look at a group of Cape Bretoners who have come together in a co-operative group to build their own houses, allowing people to participate in home ownership with carrying charges, including taxes, at $106.00 a month.

MOVIES

Wednesday

My Wife's Best Friend (xx), on 4 at 9:30. A 1952 comedy starring Anne Baxter and MacDonald Carey.

The Long Haul (x), on 13 at 11. A 1959. Tragedy drama about racketeers in England with Victor Mature and Diana Dors.

Bonjour Tristesse (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Deborah Kerr, David Niven and Jean Seberg star in this lavishly produced 1958 romantic drama about a young girl who

The Great Race (xxx), on 5 at 4. Part 1. A delightful comedy starring Toy Curtis and Jack Lemmon that chronicles the first New York-to-Paris car race in the early 1900s. (Concludes tomorrow, same time and channel.)

The Rare Breed (xxx), on 7 at 4. A charming western-drama about two proper English ladies who come to the old west to start a new breed of cattle and find more than they bargained for. Good cast with James Stewart, Maureen O'Hara and Juliette Mills.

I'll Never Forget What's His Name (xxx), on 13 at 7:30. A witty satire about a man disillusioned with his shallow life. This 1967 movie boasts an excellent cast with Oliver Reed, Orson Welles and Carol White.

The Undefeated (xx), on 8 at 8. A 1969 western that has Rock Hudson and John Wayne as post-Civil War officers, one Union and one Rebel, joining forces to fight bandits and Indians in Mexico. (60 mins.)

The Left Handed Gun (xxx), on 4 at 9. Arthur Penn (Bonnie and Clyde) directed this intense, psychological look at the life and times of outlaw, Billy the Kid. This 1958 western stars Paul Newman.

Reprisal (xx), on 13 at 12:30. Routine western starring Guy Madison, Felicia Farr and Kathryn Grant.

Calling Northside 777 (xxx), on 12 at 1:35. An exciting, fast-paced story of a newspaperman who proves a man innocent by probing an eleven-year-old case. This 1947 crime-drama stars James Stewart, Lee J. Cobb and Richard Conte.

Union Pacific (xxx), on 2 at 11:30. Grandiose western directed by DeMille that tells the story of the linking of the east and west by rail and stars Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck — vintage 1939.

Distinguished Canadian actor Christopher Plummer stars in The Wit and World of G.B.S. chronicling the early years of Shaw in Dublin, where he was born on July 26, 1856, through his lengthy career as a playwright, to his death at Ayot St. Lawrence at the age of 94. Excerpts from some of Shaw's greatest, most enduring works are performed in the program: Man and Superman (Morse); Major Barbara (Colicos); Saint Joan (Bujold); The Doctor's Dilemma (Whitelhead); and John Bull's

Other Island (MacGowran). There are also film sequences from a Japanese production of My Fair Lady, based on Shaw's Pygmalion. Each dramatic sequence was filmed in a unique but appropriate environment — from First World War battlefields to a Montreal jail cell.

MOVIES

Thursday

My Six Loves (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A sentimental comedy starring Debbie Reynolds and Cliff Robertson about a Broadway star who becomes a foster mother to six orphans.

The Great Race (xxx), on 5 at 4. Conclusion of this delightful comedy spoof starring Tony Curtis, Jack Lemmon and Natalie Wood, begun yesterday, same time and channel.

Warkill (xx), on 7 at 4. A second World War drama about a clash between a war correspondent and a sadistic colonel starring Tom Drake and Robert Montgomery.

Hauser's Memory (xxx), on 13 at 7:30. An above-average sci-fi thriller about a scientist who sends himself on a terrifying odyssey into the past. This 1970 TV movie stars David McCallum, Susan Strasberg and Lili Palmer.

In Cold Blood (xxxx), on 7 at 9. A skillful adaptation of Truman Capote's searing novel about two young ex-cons who slaughtered a Kansas farmer and his family in cold blood. An unforgettable re-enactment of a real-life incident, definitely not for children or the squeamish!

True Grit (xxxx), on 12 at 9. This 1969 western is highlighted by John Wayne's Academy Award-winning role as Rooster Cogburn, a one-eyed crotchety U.S. marshal who can still shoot straight. Supporting cast includes Glen Campbell, Kim Darby and Dennis Hopper.

The Love Lottery (xxx), on 2 at 11:50. A delightful English-made comedy about top movie star who say, in a reckless moment, that he'll offer himself as husband to the winner of a lottery. Excellent cast with David Niven, Peggy Cummins, Theodore Bikel and Sebastian Cabot.

Man on a String (xx), on 6 and 8 at 11:50. Christopher George and Joel (Cabaret) Grey star in this 1972 TV movie about a cop who goes undercover to break up a crime ring.

A Tattered Web (xx), on 7 and 12 at 12:00. Lloyd Bridges and Broderick Crawford star in this mystery about a cop trying to conceal the accidental killing of his son-in-law's mistress.

The Sniper (xxx), on 13 at 12:30. Arthur Franz, Adolphe Menjou and Marie Windsor star in this drama about a deranged killer who baffles police on his trail.

The Unknown Man (xxx), on 12 at 1:45. An involved crime drama about a lawyer who successfully defends an accused murderer only to find that the man was really guilty. Starring in this 1951 movie are Walter Pidgeon and Ann Harding.

Thursday

Movin' On, on 8 at 8. An un-sold pilot film tracing the adventures of a stock-car racer and a cyclist starring Patrick Wayne (son of John) and Geoffrey Deuel. (30 mins.)

International Performance, on 9 at 9. Variations on love in music and dance. 1. Tchaikovsky's fiery and lyrical Romeo and Juliet, a tone poem based on Shakespeare's tragedy. 2. Dancers Claire Motte and Milenko Banoritch, seen earlier this season in Firebird, have the leads in a ballet set to Monteverdi's 17th-century dramatic cantata, The Combat of Tancrede and Clorinda. (60 mins.)

Here Come the 70s, on 8 at 9:30. A preview of fashions in the future. Pierre Cardin, the first Parisian couturier to produce ready-to-wear clothes for the masses, discusses his approach to the future. (30 mins.)

A FRIEND IN NEED — Children at the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Centre for the emotionally disturbed do not readily accept relationships involving love and trust. That's where Laramie comes in. A handsome Golden Retriever of seemingly limitless energy and patience, she bounds around the hospital loving the children and, perhaps more importantly, accepting their love in return. Laramie's therapy is just one moving excerpt from, It Takes a Lot of Love, a one-hour special concerning people and their pets, will be seen on CBC-TV, Thursday, Nov. 16 at 9:00 p.m. on Channel 2. Host and narrator is Chad Everett.

In making the arrangements, Don Gordon, president of CBC-TV Sports, said, "CBC-TV will provide extensive coverage of the games. The Games will be broadcast in English and French, and will be held in Burnaby, on the mainland. Almost all the events will take place in and around Vancouver, including athletic and officials.

Events will include field, rowing, swimming, diving, soccer, lacrosse, tennis and others and will be held in Queen Elizabeth Park, Burnaby Lake, and the Canada Games Park in West Vancouver. The opening ceremony will be held in Burnaby Lake, and the closing ceremony will be held in Queen Elizabeth Park, Burnaby, on the mainland. Almost all the events will take place in and around Vancouver, including athletic and officials.

Goodwin who is president of CBC's sports division, said, "The project also includes the development of sports facilities in British Columbia, including co-ordinated programs. In this country, we will be receiving equipment from the United States and Canada for the purpose of covering the needs of this country."

Tenth Decade Returns to TV

CBC Television will resume its encore showing of The Tenth Decade series with episode five, Search for a Mandate, on Monday, Nov. 13 at 10 p.m.

Episode six, No Joy in Heaven, will be colorcast Tuesday, Nov. 14, also at 10 p.m. and the final two programs in the eight-part series will be telecast Wednesday, Nov. 22 and Thursday, Nov. 23.

The Nov. 13 program, Search for a Mandate, chronicles the tumultuous time between the general elections of April 1963 and November 1965, which began and ended with the Canadian electorate choosing Lester Pearson's Liberals to form minority governments.

It was a time when the Liberals' Sixty Days of Decision sputtered to a disappointing conclusion, when fledgling Finance Minister Walter Gordon's first budget became the focal point of a concerted opposition attack, when U.S. President John Kennedy was assassinated, and a series of political scandals erupted in Ottawa.

By 1965 the Liberals, convinced their troubles were due to minority government, again called the nation to the polls in the firm hope of achieving a clear-cut majority. But the Liberals' search for a mandate ended with the party again returned to power with a minority.

No Joy in Heaven, the Nov. 14 telecast, recalls such names as George Spencer and Gerda Munsinger, the initials FLQ, the expression 'Quiet Revolution,' the battle over unification of the Armed Forces, and the opposing philosophies of "economic nationalism" and "continentalism."

WINTER is not kind to the small white-tailed deer. The deep, hard-packed snow makes it difficult to find food such as twigs and grass and the deer's enemy, the timber-wolf, with his padded paws easily outruns his prey. Yet, wonderously, this small deer manages to survive. Wandering Through Winter, highlights this cold and barren, yet lyrically beautiful season and the struggle for survival of North America's wildlife, on Thursday, November 16 at 10 p.m. on Channel 8.

Canada Games On CBC-TV

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has been granted exclusive television rights to the 1973 Canada Games, which will be held August 3 to 12 next year in New Westminster and Burnaby, B.C.

In making the announcement, Don Goodwin, head of CBC-TV Sports, said that CBC-TV will provide comprehensive, live, local, regional and national coverage of most of the events at the games. CBC Radio will also provide extensive coverage, regionally and nationally.

The Games will be held for Westminster and the district of Burnaby, on B.C.'s lower mainland. Almost 3,000 people will take part in this, the second Canada Summer Games, including athletes, coaches and officials.

Events will include track and field, rowing, baseball, swimming, diving, softball, soccer, lacrosse among the others and will be staged at Queen's Park, Moody Park, the Canada Games Pool in New Westminster, Deer Lake, Burnaby Lake, The Burnaby Lake Sports Complex, and Swangard Stadium in Burnaby. The opening ceremonies will take place in Queen's Park, New Westminster, and the closing ceremonies will take place in Swangard Stadium, Burnaby.

Goodwin who is also chairman of CBC's sports planning group for the Canada Games project also announced that Ben Chapple, executive producer of sports for CBC in British Columbia, will be the BC co-ordinator of the games. In this capacity Chapple will be responsible for gathering CBC personnel and equipment from across the country for the complicated job of covering a sporting event of this size.

Hall of Fame, on 5 at 8:30. The Hands of Cormac Joyce, stars Stephen Boyd as a proud fisherman who casts his hand against the elements.

The setting is an island off the Irish coast, where as approaching storm sends villagers scurrying for the mainland. Based on a novel by Leonard Wibberley this excellent drama co-stars the exciting Broadway actress Colleen Dewhurst.

For instance, it even has a campground which soon will have sites for more than 700 recreational vehicles. It's the first commercial campground that I have ever seen that looks like a national park.

Disney World Aids Florida's Economy

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD—Sometimes the Santa Ana Freeway gets so jammed, it's much easier to hop on a jet and spend the weekend at Disney World in Orlando, Fla., instead of Disneyland in Anaheim.

That's what happened recently. Disney World celebrated its first anniversary and tossed a mammoth party.

You have to see Disney World to believe it. Guests were put up in the Contemporary Resort hotel which is so contemporary that the Monorail runs right through the lobby. The lobby itself is eight stories high.

As the whole world knows, Disney World covers 27,000 acres. That's because Walt learned a lesson from Anaheim where the quick buck promoters moved in and surrounded Disneyland.

That will never happen at Disney World. If ever there was a perfectly planned resort complex, it's Disney World.

For instance, it even has a campground which soon will have sites for more than 700 recreational vehicles. It's the first commercial campground that I have ever seen that looks like a national park.

Only five campsites are allotted to an acre in the densely forested area. Instead of the modernistic Monorail connecting the campers with the Magic Kingdom, a new narrow-gauge steam railroad with open-air cars something out of a John Wayne movie will be in operation by Christmas.

Also under construction is a western town and the Fort Wilderness area to give the campsite that authentic wild west look.

Lake Wilderness which is part of the camping area will have an old swimmin' hole recreation area with rafts, sliding ponds, sandy beaches, swings and all the trappings that made swimming so much fun for all us old-timers.

As Disney set a new standard for amusement parks, he may do the same thing for commercial campgrounds.

The ecology crowd will be happy to know that the Disney people have preserved the natural beauty of the Disney World area around Orlando in central Florida. In fact, they even improved on it.

You can't imagine what Disney World has done to the economy of Central Florida. With close to 12,000 employees, it is the largest single employer in the state of Florida. Except for the key Disney executives from California, the working force has been recruited from Florida.

First night there, Card Walker, President of Walt Disney Productions and Dick Nunis, the former University of Southern California football ...

Leonard Nimoy, who was Mr. Spock on Star Trek and a member of the Mission: Impossible team, has turned to directing. He'll direct a segment of Night Gallery ...

From the thoughtful, tender imagery of the two Schubert Impromptus — A-flat and G-flat major — with which Aleksei Nasedkin began his recital Wednesday, to the translucent Chopin of his final encore, it was an evening of total artistry and pianistic grandeur.

A many-faceted artist, this guest of the Victoria Symphony, he constantly amazes and delights his listener with his subtlety and perfection of detail.

He turns from the frenzied virtuosity of Liszt, and the hugeness of Mussorgsky, to the tip-toe delicacy and simplicity of a peasant dance motif, and each is complete and unflawed.

He is like a sculptor carving gigantic figures out of granite, who transfers his vision and manipulative skill to the devoted fashioning of a fragile flower.

A creative as well as interpretive musician, Nasedkin had programmed a work of his own — a piece composed in 1968 in a short sonata form.

As a composer he is characteristically virile and individual in the use of his thematic material. The piece develops in intriguing rhythmic patterns and is texturally pleasing.

The Liszt B minor Sonata is grandiose and poses ferocious technical problems that are no problem at all for such a pianist.

But when Nasedkin plays it, showering the stage with passage work of incomparable brilliance, scintillating trills and thundering octaves, it is more than a mere display piece.

Nasedkin gives to Liszt something of himself, something of his personal poetry, which is an inevitable enrichment.

The crown of the evening was, of course, Mussorgsky's fine suite — Pictures at an Exhibition.

Here the artist was in his element, moving from picture to picture, savoring each with subtle nuances of tone, delicate lines, brilliant wit and aplomb of a master.

His return to the Victoria Symphony stage will be eagerly looked for.

CORONER CLEARS POOL OWNER

The owner of a swimming pool in which a three-year-old boy drowned Oct. 23 was cleared of any responsibility after an inquiry by Coroner

Edmond St. Jorre Wednesday. Scotty McLeod, of 551 Cedarcrest, was playing with two other children near a pool owned by F. Y. Chung, of 3130 Wishart. The other two children left the McLeod boy alone and he fell into the pool shortly after.

Hijack Charge

TOKYO (AP) — Police filed charges Wednesday of hijacking, attempted robbery and possession of a weapon and explosives against the Japanese resident of Los Angeles who tried to hijack a Japanese airliner and $2 million to Cuba Monday. The man is Tatsuo Nakao, 47. The maximum sentence under the charge is life imprisonment.

Highway Lights Can Be Killers

Highway lights can be real killers if they're placed too close to the edge of the road, the superintendent of the British Columbia motor vehicles branch said Wednesday.

"The most glaring example of this in the Greater Victoria area is the knocked over lamp standards on the Pat Bay Highway," said Ray Hadfield.

Hadfield was addressing a roadway lighting seminar sponsored by the Vancouver Island chapter of the Illuminating Engineering Society, held in the Queen Victoria Inn.

Properly designed highway lights can be set far back from the roadside so they aren't targets for passing cars, Hadfield told 80 men attending the day-long seminar.

He singled out two lampstands by the new overpass at Quadra St. and the Pat Bay Highway as "just waiting for an accident" because they're too close to the road.

Street lights and car lights played a role in the 300 night time traffic fatalities (out of 636 in all) in B.C. in 1971, said Hadfield.

Last year out of 448,000 motor vehicles tested, 101,500 were rejected because of faulty vehicle lights, he said.

He accused North American companies of "feet-dragging" in the introduction of Halogen headlights, which are used in Europe. Halogen lights can give three-quarters more side visibility to drivers than the standard sealed beam lights, he said.

Hadfield criticized drivers why use their parking lights for other purposes than parking.

"The ultimate end would be a law that says you can't drive along the road with just parking lights on," he said.

New Towns One Solution

The Capital Regional District board will hold a special all-day meeting Nov. 30 to discuss a report on alternative residential land uses.

The meeting will be held in the district's boardroom in the Board of Trade building on Bastion Square, starting at 9:30 a.m.

The alternatives, given in a planning department report, range from continuing present policies to directing growth to various areas and to creation of two new towns, in Central Saanich and Colwood.

SALES/SERVICE

CHRYSLER
CANADA LTD.

Plymouth likes you to get off to a good start on those cold winter mornings. So Electronic Ignition comes standard.

For years Chrysler engineers have been researching and perfecting an Electronic Ignition system to replace the conventional breaker points and condenser. Now we have it. And it's standard on all '73 Plymouth engines built in North America. Electronic Ignition is virtually maintenance free. So your engine stays in tune longer and goes further between tune-ups. It also improves cold starts and helps keep your exhaust emissions cleaner.

'73 Plymouth Duster has our space-age Electronic Ignition system. And it has torsion bar suspension for superb handling control and a smooth ride. And, like every Plymouth, Duster is built to last with Unibody construction and a 7-stage dip-and-spray process to fight rust. When it comes to size, Duster is the compact that's just big enough, just small enough, to be just right. There's room to seat five adults in comfort, room for all their luggage too. Yet its 108 inch wheel base is easy to handle and easy to park. Choose the power you need, right up to 340 V8. Plymouth Duster. Too tough to beat. Drive it today at your Plymouth dealers.

Mainland Heroin Traffickers RCMP Target

By BRUCE O'BEE
Times Staff

Victoria RCMP drug squad intends to tackle the local heroin problem "hammer and tong."

Sergeant David Staples, non-commissioned officer in charge of Victoria subdivision drug section, said, "Our entire effort here is directed at discouraging mainland traffickers from entering into the Vancouver Island market, and I think we're going to be successful."

Most local heroin arrives from Vancouver normally in quantities of two or three ounces, said Staples.

"Depending on the trafficker's connection," the "wholesale" value of an ounce is between $1,500 and $3,000. The street value is about $8,000 or $20 a capsule.

Statistics on the numbers of heroin addicts are supplied by the department of national health and welfare and are based on actual prosecutions.

...successful

between 400 and 500 known local addicts. The same time last year there were an estimated 150 addicts.

Statistics for the entire island showed 314 addicts in 1971 and 1244 this year.

"The average local addict would be between 18 and 30 years old," said Staples.

Most heroin habits require between three and four capsules a day and some have been known to use as many as 10 capsules.

Staples said at the present time it is difficult to assess the local effects of the Oct. 11 nation-wide narcotics sweep.

"It hasn't slowed it down, it's certainly helped in controlling it," he said.

Twenty-five warrants were issued in Victoria and four are outstanding.

On Oct. 26 the RCMP seized one ounce of heroin and charged five Victorians with conspiracy to traffic in heroin.

The arrests were the result of a five-week investigation and not connected with the nationwide raids.

"The conspiracy charge has had as much impact as the undercover operation," said Staples, but "there is still heroin in the city."

Asked to comment on the extent of Mafia involvement in the local drug trade Staples replied, "A lot of people have a misconception of what the Mafia is."

"Narcotics rackets have been well-organized for years. The narcotics trade is one of the original areas of organized crime."

"You can't traffic in a drug, say heroin for instance without some closely-knit system."

"Being on an island, we're rather remote from the actual source of heroin," he added.

"Rehabilitation of the addict is a most difficult thing," but "I don't think it's a hopeless situation," said Staples.

Drug addiction is similar to alcoholism. There's always the "danger of backsliding," he said.

"The word 'addiction' is less important these days than the term 'dependence,'" he said. "Some addicts can kick their physical addiction in two or three weeks without

Heroin addiction is immediately felt by the community in the form of break-ins, forgeries and other forms of theft favored as means of supporting the habit.

Police records show crimes in these categories recording a marked upswing over the past year.

Local RCMP and municipal police forces have increased the drug squad membership by three over the last year bringing the total to 10 throughout the city.

The members continually work long hours as the problem continues to grow.

Drug Abuse Crash Course Set

The training centre, set up in October, is working on research and curriculum for its week-long courses at the moment.

Next week will see the first of its seminars, to be attended by "an invited group" of interested individuals, including members of the federal department of health and welfare, whose committee on the non-medical use of drugs has funded the centre's first six months of operation.

Benedick hopes the centre will be fully operational within the next two weeks. Trainee groups will ideally be no larger than 12 persons, she said, because of the centre's limited time and space.

Museum-on-Wheels Plan Aided by Federal Grant

The Provincial Museum will receive $144,000 and the Maritime Museum $25,000 in federal grants from a national museums program which is spending $9.4 million this year.

Objective of the program is to develop the capacity of museums and art galleries across Canada to take displays on the road — to bring history and art to people outside the major centres.

Provincial museum director Bristol Foster said today that because not everyone can get to the bigger museums, Ottawa wants them and the art galleries to look outdoors.

This involves things like "museomobiles" to carry displays, or possibly rail transport, he said. And moving and displaying historical material, much of it fragile, presents some problems.

Close to $100,000 of the Provincial museum's grant will be used to hire 28 staff who will be available to help the smaller museums when they ask for aid in handling displays on loan.

TEACHER TOUR

Part of that money will finance teachers from the museum who will go out to schools in the province.

"We've always wanted to do this but we've never had the money," said Foster.

The teachers could be equipped with kits developed by the museum. One on Indian face masks for example, could be used to illustrate different traditions.

Of the grant money, $47,000 will be used to help catalogue the tens of thousands of historical items the museum has. Material will be organized so it is more useful not only for display but for research purposes.

The national museums of Canada have established the Canadian Conservation Institute, a new branch of the federal museum system, to specialize in conserving historic objects and art.

REGIONAL LABS

The institute will have five regional conservation laboratories across Canada with located in either Vancouver or Victoria.

This involves things like "museomobiles" to carry displays, or possibly rail transport, he said. And moving and displaying historical material, much of it fragile, presents some problems.

Overhaul of Unions Urged by CLC Chief

VANCOUVER (CP) — The executive secretary of the Canadian Labor Congress said Wednesday that the threat of breakaway unions is one of the most serious problems confronting the Canadian labor movement.

William Dodge told the annual convention of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, that the whole labor movement must take a complete look at its structures and needs if it is to overcome the breakaway problem.

"Unfortunately, the imperfections within our unions are numerous enough that if members are looking for an excuse to quit they can be sure of finding one," he said.

"It is not that our unions have been undemocratic, rather it is that they have been unresponsive to the needs of their members."

"The cries for help have been unmistakeable; in bargaining demands, in rejection of negotiated settlements, in contempt for the labor establishment, in the exodus from unions of long standing which is becoming all too familiar to you in B.C. The message there has been loud and clear and again we haven't been listening."

Dodge also clashed with delegates who the previous day had attacked the CLC leadership over the question of affiliating the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union with the congress because of alleged Communist leanings.

He told the federation that trade unions "are in love with their constitutions."

"But how many of us are really prepared to shake up our organizational and educational methods, or functions?"

"I am as much to blame as anyone for that, but none of us has been willing to face up to the possibility that the traditional structures and methods may be totally outmoded and incapable of meeting the problems of modern industrial society."

He said he was not arguing for greater militancy or toughness.

"As with many other habits of ours, we have developed a stereotype about militancy," he said.

"If you haven't been on strike lately you are not with it. It may well be that our tendency to think strike action is the universal answer to all our collective bargaining problems may be at the root of some of our problems. Certainly it is the principle cause of the shocking state of our image."

The federation also endorsed recommendations Wednesday calling for greater organization of working women in the province.

The report of the committee on women's rights called for a study of the feasibility of negotiating the establishment of child care centres by management.

$736,000 In Grants Cancelled

OTTAWA (CP) — Two grants from the regional expansion department to Silver Shields Mines Inc. and the Jacques Cartier Mint Inc. of Toronto have been cancelled, it was announced Wednesday.

The grants, totalling $736,000, were originally announced last May in support of proposals for a silver refining plant and a commercial mine to be located in Cobalt, Ont.

The department said in a news release that an investigation into the incentives produced evidence that a member of the department had received "improper benefits" from a person or persons associated with the company, and the grants were cancelled.

TANK MOVING SPARKS RIOT

TOKYO (UPI) — The U.S. army moved 26 controversial M48 tanks from a supply depot today, touching off wild leftist demonstrations which left at least 84 police and demonstrators hurt.

Demonstrators and policemen were injured in clashes in front of the U.S. army supply and maintenance depot 24 miles southwest of Tokyo and along the highway from the depot to the port of Yokohama, about 15 miles away.

About 1,500 leftwing students and labor unionists trying to obstruct movement of the tanks gathered in front of the main gate of the depot and another 4,500 on the highway.

The demonstrators opposed movement of the tanks on grounds they were headed for Vietnam.

It was the first movement of tanks since August. Yokohama Mayor Ichio Asukata refused to let the tanks pass through his city on grounds the U.S. army did not obtain necessary permits. But the national government overruled him and said the tanks could pass through the city en route.

Villacentres

Villacentres Ltd., which operates nursing homes throughout Canada, earned $514,283 or 25 cents a share during the nine months ended Sept. 30. In the comparable period of 1971, earnings were $377,312 or 18.6 cents a share last year.

The company says in a report to shareholders that sales for the three quarters totalled $782,778,000, up about seven per cent from $740,111,000 a year earlier.

The company said the improvement in earnings reflected significant price increases for major products from the depressed levels last year.

Meanwhile, Cominco's board of directors has declared a 45-cent-a-share dividend, payable Dec. 15 to shareholders of record Nov. 29.

Vancouver Bidding For Winter Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver is among several centres standing ready to bid for the 1976 Winter Olympics after Colorado voted Tuesday to stop state funds that would have helped Denver stage the games.

While the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) held some hope that the Denver games could still be rescued by federal funds, the Denver organizers announced they were quitting.

And in Dublin, Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said the whole future of the Winter Olympics could be in question if Denver is unable to fulfill its commitment.

"I am sure there will be some people in the IOC who will favor winding up the Winter Olympics altogether if Denver pulls out," said Killanin, who had just returned home after touring the 1976 Summer Games site in Montreal.

"Ex-president Avery Brundage has been advocating the end of the Winter Games for some time past."

In Vancouver, Mayor Tom Campbell said the Vancouver-Garibaldi Olympic Committee will go after the Games if bids are reopened.

"When we originally made a bid for it, we felt we had the best site available in Canada," said Campbell. "We'll be a little rushed for 1976 now, but we can do it."

Vancouver was not the only possible takeover contender, as Oslo, Norway; St. Moritz, Switzerland; Innsbruck, Austria and Grenoble, France, spoke up.

"In the face of what would appear to be an overwhelming vote, it would just not be proper for us to try to stage the Games," said Carl DeTemple, president of the Denver Olympic Organizing Committee said, "even if the money were available."

DeTemple said the committee would probably consider a formal resolution today to withdraw its efforts to stage the Games and to vote the committee out of existence.

Lake Placid, N.Y., site of the 1932 Olympics, had asked to be considered as an alternate to Denver, but DeTemple said such a choice "is probably not too realistic."

"The U.S. is probably out of the running."

The IOC announced in Lausanne, Switzerland, that Killanin would meet Monday with his three vice-presidents to consider the Winter Games situation. The vice-presidents

Go-Ahead For Mace Highrise?

By PAUL MOSS

Months of stalling action — and inaction — by Victoria on the controversial Bay Village development in James Bay could end today with an initiative by the city to reopen lines of communication with developer J. A. Mace.

ISRAELI JETS HAMMER ARAB BASES

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli planes bombed two Arab guerrilla bases in Syria today and touched off dogfights between the Israeli and Syrian air force and artillery duels along a 25-mile stretch of the Golan Heights ceasefire line.

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the Israelis shot down two Syrian MiG 21 jet interceptors that tried to drive off the Israelis, making their second big attack on Arab guerrilla bases in 10 days. He said Israel suffered no losses.

Kissinger Aide In Saigon

New York Times
WASHINGTON — The White House says Henry A. Kissinger's chief aide, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, has gone to Saigon to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam on the efforts to conclude an Indochina settlement.

It is widely assumed that following Haig's talks with Thieu, Kissinger would hold a "final" round of meetings with North Vietnamese negotiators to complete the details of the nine-point agreement, first worked out in a draft form last month. Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, announced Haig's mission, asserting that he would confer with Thieu "on the progress of the peace negotiations and make a general assessment of the situation in Vietnam."

Homeowners May Sue Que. Hydro

MONTREAL (CP) — Homeowners left without electric power since Monday threatened legal action Wednesday as a strike by 8,500 Quebec Hydro employees entered its fourth day today with no sign of a return to the bargaining table.

Of 236 power failures since the walkout began at 7:30 a.m. Monday, 175 remain unprepared, leaving 7,800 customers in Montreal, Quebec City and the Laurentians area without electricity.

In the Montreal suburb of Cote St. Luc, where more than 4,000 persons have been without electricity since Monday morning, residents said at a meeting they would seek a court order demanding the repair of the broken cable that caused the blackout.

Food Prices Down Slightly But Consumer Index Up 5%

Times News Services

Despite a small monthly drop in food prices, the consumer price index was 5.3 per cent higher in October than a year ago.

Statistics Canada today reported the price index rose to 142 in October from 141.8 in September and 134.9 a year ago.

Although Mace, some months later signed the land-use contract governing the development, the city refused to do so on grounds that Mace's application for a development permit was defective.

On several occasions in the early months of this year Mace threatened to sue the city over the delay. The stalemate finally appeared to have been resolved last June when council held out a compromise offer to Mace.

Under the terms of the offer, the developer was invited to apply for a contract allowing him to proceed with the development, with the height cut by five storeys and the density reduced.

Mace agreed to the general

Health and personal care items, which account for only seven per cent of the total, also rose last month with higher dental fees, and higher prices for soap, toothpaste and razor blades.

Statistics Canada said the over-all index at 142 means another cent was trimmed from the purchasing power of the dollar last month. The 1961 consumer dollar was worth only 70 cents last month, compared with 71 cents in September and 74 cents in October last year.

Another way of looking at the index is to say that consumer prices last month were 42 per cent higher than they were in 1961. They were 83.5 per cent higher than they were in 1949.

The statistics bureau, which surveys more than 300 consumer goods and services every month to compile the index, said the same over-all gain was recorded between September and October in both 1970 and 1971. Food prices usually move down in October.

The index is based on 1961 consumer prices equalizing 100.

Economists consider a percentage increase of more than two to three per cent as inflationary.

A small increase in house rents for October was reported, but costs of home ownership rose strongly.

The increase in clothing prices, the bureau said, was a movement that usually occurs between September and October, with the approach of winter.

In dollar terms, the over-all index means that it cost $14.20 in October to buy what $14.18 bought in September, or what $14.39 bought in October last year, in a broad selection of consumer goods and services.

In the food category, the price of restaurant meals rose last month, but there was a significant drop in the cost of foods purchased for home consumption.

For food at home, last month's grocery basket cost $14.13 compared with $14.31 in September and $12.90 in October last year.

In compiling the over-all index, Statistics Canada figures housing cost represent 32 per cent of the total, food prices 27 per cent and clothing prices 11 per cent.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau met his cabinet today to discuss, among other things, the contents of the next throne speech and, presumably, the date when Parliament will meet.

Asked by reporters whether the date would be decided today, the prime minister said: "Perhaps."

He said that in drafting the speech, which outlines the government's legislative plans, an effort would be made to meet some of the criticisms raised during the recent election campaign.

Told that Hu Harries, defeated Liberal candidate in Edmonton Strathcona had suggested a Western tour, the prime minister said he had not heard of that but he was willing to consider it.

On Wednesday, Trudeau said he is willing to consider taking a trip to the West where the Liberals lost several seats in last week's federal election.

The prime minister gave the undertaking after the morning half of an all-day Liberal caucus meeting where most of the 109 Liberal MPs elected last week discussed among other things the loss of the party majority in Parliament.

Asked whether a cabinet shuffle was imminent, Trudeau said: "No, certainly not in the next two weeks."

At 51st Street and Park Avenue, a powerful updraft sent a woman's umbrella up to the 20th floor of a hotel.

The day's rainfall also surpassed the average for the month of November, which is 3.39 inches.

Winds gusting up to 60 m.p.h. tore umbrellas out of the hands of midtown pedestrians, who leaned at a 45-degree angle as they fought through the storm.

While Anik is in its transfer orbit, it will be tracked by Telesat using a leased, portable tracking station on Guam, in the Pacific, and Allan Park control station near Toronto, and the Lake Cowichan station on Vancouver Island.

Three days after launch, about the time the satellite reaches its high point in orbit the apogee motor will fire and, it is hoped, push Anik-1 into a rough final orbit, 22,500 miles above the earth.

While Anik is in its transfer orbit, it will be tracked by Telesat using a leased, portable tracking station on Guam, in the Pacific, and Allan Park control station near Toronto, and the Lake Cowichan station on Vancouver Island.
